8	Wu vs. Bob Page, Orange County Registrar of Voters 30-2024-01419457-CU-WM-CJC	Petitioner's Motion for Attorney Fees Petitioner Zhen Wu's motion for attorney fees is GRANTED in the amount of $8,900. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1021.5.) Petitioner's enforcement of the accuracy of the ballot conferred an important right affecting the public interest by forcing Schneider to change her improper designation. If not corrected, the voters would have been misled into believing she held an occupation she did not hold. The correction conferred a significant benefit on the electorate. (See Lindelli v. Town of San Anselmo (2006) 139 Cal.App.4th 1499, 1516.) The financial burden of this private enforcement warrants subsidizing Wu's attorneys. In a writ case, such as this case, the only relief under the petition is either issuance or nonissuance of the writ. Neither party is seeking damages from the other; no money would be awarded to the petitioner or real party in interest. The only remedy was in correcting the ballot pamphlet or keeping the ballot pamphlet as it was. The ultimate beneficiaries were the voters. Thus, the interest of both sides is nonpecuniary. Schneider's reliance on Willard v. Kelley (2015) 238 Cal.App.4th 1049 is misplaced. In Willard, the court found Woolery's successful defense against the petition did not confer a significant benefit to the electorate. Woolery wanted a designation of Orange Treasurer/CPA, while his opponent wanted him to use his more
