

		Finally, the Court stays the remainder of the action pending the resolution of the motion to stay proceedings. Moving Defendants to give notice.
112	Space Exploration Technologies Corp. vs. Enteshari, 23-01365637	On 12/12/2025 Defendants filed the following Motions which were originally set for hearing on 6/25/2026: (ROA 169) Defendant Ali Enteshari ("Defendant") will move to compel Plaintiff Space Exploration Technologies Corp. ("Plaintiff") to provide further responses to Requests for Production of Documents and Tangible Things, Set One, and reimburse Defendant for his attorneys' fees incurred in bringing this Motion. (ROA 181) Defendant Amin Enteshari ("Defendant") will move to compel Plaintiff Space Exploration Technologies Corp. ("Plaintiff") to provide further responses to Requests for Production of Documents and Tangible Things, Set One, and reimburse Defendant for his attorneys' fees incurred in bringing this Motion. (ROA 185) Defendant Amin Enteshari ("Defendant") will move to compel Plaintiff Space Exploration Technologies Corp. ("Plaintiff") to provide further responses to Special Interrogatories, Set One, and reimburse Defendant for his attorneys' fees incurred in bringing this Motion. (ROA 189) Defendant Ali Enteshari ("Defendant") will move to compel Plaintiff Space Exploration Technologies Corp. ("Plaintiff") to provide further responses to Special Interrogatories, Set One, and reimburse Defendant for his attorneys' fees incurred in bringing this Motion. Additionally, on 4/10/2026 Plaintiff filed the following Motions: (ROA 203) Plaintiff Space Exploration Technologies Corp. ("Plaintiff") will and hereby does move this Court pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure section 2031.310(a) for an order compelling Defendant Ali Enteshari ("Defendant") to provide further responses to Plaintiff's Third Set of Requests for Production of Documents, Numbers 67 68, 71-76, and 78. Plaintiff also moves for sanctions against Defendant his counsel at Bernstein Law PC pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure §§ 2031.310(h) and 2023.050(a)(3), in the amount of $2,000. (ROA 207) Plaintiff Space Exploration Technologies Corp. ("Plaintiff") will and hereby does move this Court pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure section 2031.320(a) for an order compelling Ali Enteshari ("Defendant") to comply with his response to Plaintiff's requests for production of documents, set one, numbers 22, 43, and 48-49, and set two, numbers 58-60 and 61-66. Plaintiff also moves pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure sections 2031.320(b) and 2023.050(a)(3) for sanctions in the amount of $5,000 against Defendant and his counsel at Bernstein Law PC, jointly and severally. Notably, on 6/1/2026 pursuant to a Plaintiff's Ex Parte, Judge Hesseltine advanced ROAS 203, 207 to be heard on 6/25/2026. (See ROA 225). Thereafter, on 6/25/2026 this Court ordered lead counsel to meet and confer and file a joint separate statement nine court days prior to the continued hearing date of 7/23/2026. To that end, on 7/20/2026 counsel submitted the joint separate statement. (ROA 315.) As to the six (6) Motions, it appears there are only twelve (12) total issues to be resolved by this Court. Plaintiff's Motion to Compel Ali Enteshari to Provide Further Responses to Requests for Production, Set Three (ROA 23) On receipt of the response to a document demand, the demanding party may move to compel a further response if any of the following apply: (1) a statement of compliance is incomplete; (2) a representation of inability to comply is inadequate, incomplete or evasive; (3) an objection is without merit or too general. (Code Civ. Proc., § 2031.310, subd. (a).) The motion must set forth specific facts showing good cause justifying the discovery, and it must be accompanied by a separate statement. (Code Civ. Proc., § 2031.310, subd. (b); Cal. Rules of Court, rule 3.1345.) To establish "good cause," the burden is on the moving party to show both: • Relevance to the subject matter (e.g., how the information in the documents would tend to prove or disprove some issue in the case); and • Specific facts justifying discovery (e.g., why such information is necessary for trial preparation or to prevent surprise at trial). (Glenfed Develop. Corp. v. Sup.Ct. (National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Penn.) (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 1113, 1117; see also Kirkland v. Sup.Ct. (Guess?, Inc.) (2002) 95 Cal.App.4th 92, 98.) If good cause is shown by the moving party, the burden is then on the responding party to justify any objections made to document disclosure. (Kirkland v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal.App.4th 92, 98].)

In this instance, the remaining RPD at issue is No. 76.

RPD No. 76: The accounting software file for VSAT PLUS, produced in native format (e.g., .QBW, .SAJ, .SCV).

Defendant objected on several grounds: privileged tax information; overly broad, vague, and ambiguous; protected by the attorney-client privilege and attorney work product doctrine; and “accounting software file” is vague and ambiguous.

Defendant also responded: “Discovery is continuing and Responding party reserves the right to amend/supplement this response once new documentation, if any, is ascertained.”

Plaintiff sets forth good cause, explaining that the native accounting file for Defendant Ali Enteshari’s wholly-owned business, Defendant VSATplus International, Inc., is relevant to show Defendants’ profits from reselling Plaintiff’s stolen property, including any connection to the Dubai-based entity that supposedly bought most of the kits for unreasonably low prices. Plaintiff also establishes specific facts justifying discovery because Plaintiff asked for Defendant’s profit information in straightforward interrogatories asking how much Defendant paid for each kit and how much they resold it for, but Defendant omitted a large number of purchases that Plaintiff knows exist because they show up in other documents Defendants produced. (See 4/10/26 Haj Decl. ¶ 4.)

Therefore, the burden shifted to Defendant to justify his many objections.

Defendant’s sole position is that he has agreed to produce responsive documents within their possession, custody, or control.

However, it remains unclear whether Defendant will produce the documents as a whole, or whether they will withhold some on the basis of the aforementioned objections. As such, Defendants have not sustained their burden and the Motion is GRANTED as to No. 76.

Defendant to provide further responses within 15 days.

Defendants’ Requests for Production, Set One (ROAs 169, 181)

RPD No. 5: Produce the "company policy" referenced by YOU in Paragraph 9 of YOUR FAC.

Plaintiff objected RPS is unreasonably vague, ambiguous, and unintelligible; not relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

Plaintiff also responded: Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Responding Party responds that it is common knowledge that Plaintiff is the exclusive manufacturer of Starlink kits.

As to good cause, Defendants seem to argue that a further response is necessary because SpaceX placed the "company policy" at issue in its own pleading.

Indeed, in the FAC, Plaintiff pleads:

"9. As part of its company policy, and to control access to its technology, Plaintiff maintains exclusive control over the manufacture of the Starlink kits that are used to connect to the satellite network. Plaintiff also directs most kit sales, and the vast majority of retail purchases of new and refurbished Starlink kits are completed directly through Plaintiff's website."

(ROA 61.)

However, simply referring to a company policy does not make it "at issue". Defendants fail to establish any cause of action (or defense) is based on or relevant to the company policy or why evidence relating to the policy is necessary herein.

As such, Defendants have not set forth good cause, and the Motion is DENIED as to RPD No. 5.

RPD 6: Produce all DOCUMENTS, including COMMUNICATIONS, which evidence, reference, mention, reflect, record, and/or otherwise concern the "company policy" referenced by YOU in Paragraph 9 of YOUR FAC.

DENIED for same reason.

RPD 7: Produce all DOCUMENTS, including COMMUNICATIONS, which evidence, reference, mention, reflect, record, and/or otherwise concern how YOU "control access to [YOUR] technology" as referenced by YOU in Paragraph 9 of YOUR FAC.

DENIED for same reason.

RPD 16: Produce all DOCUMENTS, including COMMUNICATIONS, which evidence, reference, mention, reflect, record, and/or otherwise concern company policies and procedures in place in July 2023, to prevent fraudulent transactions such as those YOU allege against ALI in this matter.

Plaintiff's Objections: calls for information that is neither relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence; unreasonably overbroad; vague, ambiguous, and unintelligible; protected by the attorney-client privilege or the attorney work-product doctrine, or both.

As to good cause, Defendants seem to argue that the policies and procedures SpaceX had in place for detecting, reviewing, rejecting, or processing the transactions at issue are directly relevant to SpaceX's allegations, Defendants' defenses, and the reliability of SpaceX's investigation and conclusions.

However, Defendants have not actually established how fraud prevention policies are relevant to the Plaintiff's causes of action. Indeed, it would seem that fraud-prevention measures are irrelevant to whether Defendants knew they were buying Plaintiff's stolen property.

As such, Defendants fail to establish good cause for the above information and as such, the Motion is DENIED as to RPD 16.

RPD 17: Produce all DOCUMENTS, including COMMUNICATIONS, which IDENTIFY all PERSONS responsible for enforcing YOUR company policies and procedures in July 2023, to prevent fraudulent transactions such as those YOU allege against ALI in this matter.

Motion as to RPD No. 17 is DENIED for same reason.

Defendants Special Interrogatories, Set One (ROA 185, 189)

Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.300(a) provides, "On receipt of a response to interrogatories, the propounding party may move for an order compelling a further response if the propounding party deems that any of the following apply: (1) An answer to a particular interrogatory is evasive or incomplete...(3) An objection to an interrogatory is without merit or too general."

Notably, if a timely motion to compel has been filed, the burden is on the responding party to justify any objection or failure fully to answer the interrogatories. [Coy v. Sup.Ct. (Wolcher) (1962) 58 C2d 210, 220-221, 23 CR 393, 398; Fairmont Ins. Co. v. Sup.Ct. (Stendell) (2000) 22 C4th 245, 255.]

No. 5 DESCRIBE IN DETAIL the "company policy" referenced by YOU in Paragraph 9 of YOUR FAC.

Plaintiff's Response is summarized as: interrogatory is not full and complete in itself and refers to other documents and information not contained in the interrogatory; vague and ambiguous; calls for information that is neither relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiving the foregoing objections, Responding Party further responds that Plaintiff provides a high speed, low latency internet service through a constellation of satellites to its customers around the world, called Starlink. To access internet through Starlink, a customer must purchase a Starlink kit, which are manufactured exclusively by Plaintiff.

Plaintiff explains the "policy" referenced in requests 5 and 6 is Plaintiff's policy of controlling access to its technology—which policy has no relevance here because Defendants are not accused of infringing Plaintiff's patents or other intellectual property rights. Defendants are instead accused of buying internet receiver kits they knew or should have known had been stolen from Plaintiff. Plaintiff's policy of controlling its own technology has nothing to do with those claims.

Plaintiff, who has the burden, has not established the law relating to relevancy—but does argue the information is not relevant.

The Court interposes here to note that Courts have construed the discovery statutes broadly so as to uphold the right to discovery wherever possible. [Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal.2d 355, 377-378.] Although very broad, the right to discovery is not absolute. The information sought must be (1) not privileged, (2) be relevant to the subject matter of the action, and (3) either itself admissible or "reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." CCP § 2017.010.

Arguably, if the company policy was relevant enough to be referred to in the FAC (and SAC), it may be relevant enough to be described as requested by Defendants.

Plaintiff's response that it provides a high speed, low latency internet service, does not explain its company policy. Rather, it explains Plaintiff's product/service.

As such, Motion is GRANTED as to Special Rog No. 5.

Special Rog No. 6: DESCRIBE IN DETAIL how YOU "control access to [YOUR] technology" as referenced by YOU in Paragraph 9 of YOUR FAC.

Motion is GRANTED as to No. 6 for the same reason as No. 5.

Special Interrogatory No. 10 IDENTIFY all PERSONS who made "reported [purchases] as fraudulent by the card holder" as alleged by YOU in Paragraph 13 of YOUR FAC.

FAC¶13 is set forth below:

"13. Plaintiff eventually learned that the purchases made in Ali's name were completed using third-party credit card information without the card holder's authorization. After the Entesharis received the kits, the purchases were reported as fraudulent by the card holder. The card issuers eventually reversed the payments to Plaintiff, but only after Plaintiff had shipped the goods and the Entesharis had received them. Plaintiff was left with nothing in exchange for its valuable products."

Plaintiff summarized response was as follows: Premature. Discovery is still ongoing, and Defendants have not yet responded to Plaintiff's recent discovery requests or appeared for deposition; vague and ambiguous; violates third-party privacy rights. Responding Party further responds that the accounts opened in Ali's name, variations of Ali's name, Miesel Castillo's name, or the names of others, but with shipping addresses that resulted in Defendants obtaining possession of the kits, starting in or around the summer of 2023, used different credit card information and different contact information in connection with each purchase. The credit-card issuer for those transactions notified Plaintiff's credit-card processor that the card holders had not authorized those transactions, which resulted in the issuer and processor reversing the charge. Plaintiff's understanding and belief, based on its experience with standard business practices, is that the credit-card issuer's account holder is the person who would have reported the charges as fraudulent or unauthorized. Plaintiff is not aware of the names of those persons at this time.

It appears Plaintiff's response provides all the information it has on the requested topic. Further information may need to come from other sources.

Motion is DENIED as to Special Rog No. 10.

Special Interrogatory No. 11: STATE ALL FACTS supporting YOUR allegation that "new accounts were opened (in Ali's name, variations of Ali's name including misspellings and changed middle initials, and in the name of others) and used to place orders for shipment to various addresses in the Southern California area that appeared linked to the Entesharis, including their Rockrose Way residential address and a warehouse they had contracted to receive shipments” as alleged by YOU in Paragraph 14 of YOUR FAC.

Motion is DENIED as to Special Rog No. 11 for the same reason as No. 10.

Special Interrogatory No. 14: DESCRIBE IN DETAIL all company policies and procedures in place in July 2023, to prevent fraudulent transactions such as those YOU allege against ALI in this matter.

Plaintiff’s summarized response: calls for information neither relevant nor reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence; burdensome and harassing; attorney-client privilege or the attorney work-product; seeks confidential business information.

In the meet and confer efforts, Defendants agreed to narrow this interrogatory to the period July 2023 through April 2024, and to fraud prevention/access-control policies and personnel actually involved in detecting, rejecting, reviewing, or processing the transactions attributed to Defendants.

In terms of relevance, Plaintiff argues that the procedures make no difference to whether the kits were stolen in the first instance or any disputed issue.

Plaintiff does not address relevancy law, or really establish why this information couldn’t lead to discovery of admissible evidence.

Plaintiff also argues anti-fraud measures are commercially sensitive because they would provide a blueprint for other potential thieves who want to realize outsized profits from reselling stolen goods.

Defendants argue that they are entitled to understand the factual procedures SpaceX contends were in place to prevent or detect those transactions, at least as applied to the transactions at issue.

They also assert that they do not seek unrelated confidential business information. But what about “related” confidential business information.

To the extent Plaintiff has anti-fraud measures (policies and procedures) that are commercially sensitive and disclosing those measures could jeopardize the safety of Plaintiff, it would seem they are not sufficiently relevant to compel disclosure.

Motion is DENIED as to No. 14.

		Special Interrogatory No. 15 IDENTIFY all PERSONS charged with enforcing YOUR company policies and procedures in July 2023, to prevent fraudulent transactions such as those YOU allege against ALI in this matter. Motion is DENIED as to No. 15 for the same reasons. SANCTIONS: Plaintiff's requests sanctions for Defendants' clear abuse of the discovery process. Plaintiff argues its motions to compel and compel further were almost entirely successful, and would have been avoided entirely if Defendants had made themselves available to meet and confer in response to Plaintiff's outreach on February 10, 12, 17, 20, 26, and March 4, 2026. (See 4/10/26 Haj Decls. ISO Motions to Compel at Ex. 1.) Plaintiff further argues that Defendants' four motions, were almost entirely abandoned— they moved on 128 unique requests, but did not even try to defend 114 of them after this Court ordered the parties to further meet and confer. If Defendants had limited their motions to the 14 [sic] requests listed above, the parties and this Court would have conserved an immense amount of resources. Defendants argue that the substantial narrowing of the parties' disputes is not evidence of discovery abuse—it is the direct result of the process this Court ordered the parties to undertake. Following the Court's Tentative Ruling, the parties engaged in extensive additional meet and confer efforts, exchanged information, clarified their respective positions, and resolved the overwhelming majority of the disputed requests. Given that counsel took this Court's order to meet and confer seriously, and narrowed the discovery issues from hundreds of requests to just twelve [12], the Court will not impose sanctions. Plaintiff to give notice.
