

Tentative Rulings for May 19, 2026
Department 503

For any matter where an oral argument is requested and any party to the hearing desires a remote appearance, such request must be timely submitted to and approved by the hearing judge. In this department, the remote appearance will be conducted through Zoom. If approved, please provide the department's clerk a correct email address. (CRC 3.672, Fresno Sup.C. Local Rule 1.1.19)

There are no tentative rulings for the following cases. The hearing will go forward on these matters. If a person is under a court order to appear, he/she must do so. Otherwise, parties should appear unless they have notified the court that they will submit the matter without an appearance. (See California Rules of Court, rule 3.1304(c).) The above rule also applies to cases listed in this "must appear" section.

Tentative Ruling

Re: French v. Boyajian
Superior Court Case No. 22CECG01923

Hearing Date: May 19, 2026 (Dept. 503)

Motion: By Plaintiff Michael French for an Order Compelling Form Interrogatories, Set One, and Plaintiff's Request for Production of Documents to Defendant, Set One; and Request for Sanctions

Tentative Ruling:

To grant plaintiff Michael French's motion to compel defendant William Scott Boyajian to provide verified responses to Form Interrogatories, Set One, and Plaintiff's Request for Production of Documents to Defendant, Set One. (Code Civ. Proc., §§ 2030.290, subd. (b), 2031.300, subd. (b).) Defendant William Scott Boyajian is ordered to serve complete verified responses to the discovery set forth above, without objections, within 10 days of the clerk's service of the minute order.

To impose monetary sanctions in favor of plaintiff Michael French and against defendant William Scott Boyajian. (Code Civ. Proc., §§ 2023.010, subd. (d), 2030.290, subd. (c), 2031.300, subd. (c).) Defendant William Scott Boyajian is ordered to pay $645 in total sanctions to counsel for plaintiff Michael French within 30 days of the clerk's service of the minute order.

Explanation:

Where a party fails to serve a timely response to interrogatories or demand for inspection, copying, testing, or sampling, the propounding party may move for an order compelling response. (Code Civ. Proc., §§ 2030.290, subd. (b), 2031.300, subd. (b).) A party that fails to serve a timely response to interrogatories or an inspection demand waives any objection to the request. (Id., §§ 2030.290, subd. (a), 2031.300, subd. (a).) Answers to interrogatories that are not verified are tantamount to no response at all for the purpose of discovery. (Appleton v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal.App.3d 632, 636.)

In the case at bench, on March 31, 2025, plaintiff Michael French ("Plaintiff") served Form Interrogatories, Set One, and Plaintiff's Request for Production of Documents to Defendant, Set One, on defendant William Scott Boyajian ("Defendant") by mail. Plaintiff was required to respond by May 5, 2025. Defendant failed to timely serve verified responses. Therefore, Plaintiff is entitled to an order compelling Defendant to respond to the discovery at issue. (Code Civ. Proc., §§ 2030.290, subd. (b), 2031.300, subd. (b).) All objections are waived. (Id., §§ 2030.290, subd. (a), 2031.300, subd. (a).)

If the party asks for monetary sanctions against the party who failed to respond to interrogatories, the court shall impose a monetary sanction against the losing party on the motion to compel unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or circumstances make the sanctions unjust. (Code Civ. Proc., § 2030.290, subd. (c).) Sanctions are similarly authorized against a party who failed to respond to a demand for inspection or production. (Id., § 2031.300, subd. (c).) Sanctions must be for reasonable expenses in enforcing discovery, including attorney's fees. (Id., § 2023.030, subd. (a).)

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, rule 3.1312(a), and Code of Civil Procedure section 1019.5, subdivision (a), no further written order is necessary. The minute order adopting this tentative ruling will serve as the order of the court and service by the clerk will constitute notice of the order.

Tentative Ruling

Re: Joele Scott v. Miguel Lopez
Superior Court Case No. 25CECG03449

Hearing Date: May 19, 2026 (Dept. 503)

Motion: Plaintiff Joele Tueno Scott's Motion to Quash Defendants Miguel Angel Saenz Lopez and Central Transport, LLC Third-Party Subpoenas

Tentative Ruling:

To quash third-party subpoenas to a) Antelope Valley College; b) Miami Dade College, Miami FL; c) University of Douala - Douala, Cameroon; and d) Saker Baptist College, Limbe, Cameroon.

To modify third-party subpoenas to a) California Health Sciences University, Clovis, CA; b) California State University Fullerton, Fullerton, CA; and c) LA Trade and Technical College, Los Angeles, CA, to read as follows:

All documents, records, report cards and transcripts pertaining to the education and scholastic ability of the individual named herein. All counseling, attendance and absentee records and medical records related to back pain Scott may have experienced starting 2015 or arising out of Scott's automobile accident on July 24, 2023.

To deny the request for sanctions.

Explanation:

Plaintiff, Joele Tueno Scott ("Scott" or "plaintiff") makes the following motion to quash and or modify subpoenas issued by defendants Miguel Angel Saenz Lopez and Central Transport, LLC (collectively "defendants") to the following third-party institutions:

- California Health Sciences University- Clovis, CA 93612
- California State University Fullerton-Registrars Office -, Fullerton, CA 92831
- LA Trade and Technical College - Los Angeles, CA 90015
- Antelope Valley College-Registrars Office -, Lancaster, CA 93536
- Miami Dade College-Registrars Office -, Miami, FL
- University of Douala - Douala, Cameroon
- Saker Baptist College - Limbe, Cameroon

This is a personal injury case, arising out of an automobile accident on July 24, 2023. Scott is seeking lost wages as a result of her injuries. Scott, who is a medical student, claims that she will lose $4 million in future earnings because the injuries she allegedly sustained will prevent her from performing the kinds of procedures required in the specialty she originally was planning to pursue, ophthalmology. Instead, Scott claims that she has been forced to apply to residency in a specialty with a lower compensation profile, psychiatry. Furthermore, Scott stated in her verified Responses to Form Interrogatories that she has experienced back pain "from time to time" since 2015. (Talebi Decl., ¶5, Ex. 3 at FROG 10.1.)

Defendants served subpoenas on every school Scott has attended since high school, seeking the following from each institution:

All documents, records, report cards and transcripts pertaining to the education and scholastic ability of the individual named herein. All office, disciplinary, counseling and scholastic records, attendance and absentee records, medical records, incident reports, teacher comments regarding the individual named herein from the first date of enrollment to and including the present."

(Adam Krolikowski Declaration, ¶1, Exhibit A.)

Scott served written objections to the subpoena pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 1985.3, asserting constitutional privacy rights, statutory privileges, overbreadth, lack of relevance, and procedural defects, including the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), Education Code section 49076, the Confidentiality of Medical Information Act (CMIA), and the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). Scott filed her motion to quash on December 19, 2025.

Code of Civil Procedure section 1987.1 states, in pertinent part:

If a subpoena requires ... the production of books, documents, or other things ... at the taking of a deposition, the court, upon motion ... may make an order quashing the subpoena entirely.... In addition, the court may make any other order as may be appropriate to protect the person from unreasonable or oppressive demands, including unreasonable violations of the right of privacy of the person.

(Code Civ. Proc., § 1987.1, subd. (a).)

Here, neither party argues that FERPA, Education Code section 49076, CMIA or HIPAA prevent disclosure. What is at dispute is whether the requests go beyond the framework of civil discovery rules and constitutional protections and whether the subpoenas are reasonable, narrowly tailored, and respectful of privacy interests.

California has numerous provisions recognizing medical record privacy and against disclosure of school records and transcripts, beginning with the California Constitution, Article I, Section I, which states: "All people are by nature free and independent and have inalienable rights. Among these are enjoying and defending life and liberty, . . . and privacy." (Cal. Const. art I, §1.) Where privacy rights are implicated, the requesting party must make a threshold showing that the records sought are directly relevant to a plaintiff's claims and are essential to the fair resolution of the lawsuit. (Davis v. Superior Court (1992) 7 Cal.App.4th 1008, 1014.) An order compelling disclosure must be narrowly tailored so as not to infringe on constitutional rights. The party asserting privacy must establish the extent and seriousness of the prospective invasion. (Williams v. Superior Court (2017) 3 Cal.5th 531, 557 (“Williams”).)

Against that showing, the court must weigh the countervailing interests the opposing party identifies. (Williams, supra, 3 Cal.5th at 557.) The court considers the purpose of the information sought, the effect that disclosure will have on the affected persons and parties, the nature of the objections urged by the party resisting disclosure, and whether there are less intrusive means for obtaining the requested information. (SCC Acquisitions, Inc. v. Superior Court (2015) 243 Cal.App.4th 741, 755.)

Here, defendants' subpoenas go all the way back to 2004:

- California Health Sciences University - July 2022- current - graduation date May 2026 Doctor in Osteopathic Medicine)
- CSU Fullerton - Bachelor in Science of Nursing (2015 to 2016)
- LA Trade and Technical college - Associate of Science In Nursing (2011- 2015)
- Antelope Valley college - 2009 to 2011 - no degree
- Miami Dade College - 2008 to 2009 - pre med - no degree
- University of Douala - Bachelor in Public law (Cameroon)
- Alfred Saker High school - Douala (2004- high school diploma)

(Talebi Decl., ¶15, Ex. 3 at FROG 2.7.)

Defendants argue they need the aforementioned information spanning 22 years because Scott is now applying for residency in psychiatry rather than ophthalmology, which could substantially impact her potential future earnings. (Defendants Opposition, pg. 4, Ins. 16-20.)

With respect to the back injury Scott suffered in 2015, defendants argue:

“Plaintiff stated in her verified Responses to Form Interrogatories that she has experienced back pain since 2015. (Talebi Decl. at ¶15.) To the extent that any documentation exists in these records that Plaintiff missed classes, clinical rotations, or other prerequisites due to this preexisting condition, Defendants should not be prohibited from utilizing tools such as subpoenas that allow them to investigate these areas of inquiry that are reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

(Defendants Opposition, pgs 4:27-5:4.)

Defendants have not shown how the entirety of Scott's educational records are directly relevant to her claims. The Court quashes subpoenas to the following four third-party institutions as the Court fails to see what relevance Scott's educational records prior to 2011 have with her ability to currently pursue a residency in ophthalmology. Furthermore, her attendance at these institutions occurred prior to back pain she suffered in 2015.

- Antelope Valley College, Lancaster, CA
- Miami Dade College, Miami, FL
- University of Douala - Douala, Cameroon
- Saker Baptist College, Limbe, Cameroon

With respect to the subpoenas to Scott's three most recent academic institutions,¹ the Court declines to modify the first clause of the subpoena, which reads:

All documents, records, report cards and transcripts pertaining to the education and scholastic ability of the individual named herein.

The Court declines to modify the first sentence of the Subpoena to these three institutions as they pertain to degrees Scott acquired, or is acquiring with respect to nursing, and there is a reasonable question pertaining to Scott's academic records that relate to Scott's candidacy to a residency position in an accredited ophthalmology program.

The Court modifies the second sentence to read:

All counseling, attendance and absentee records and medical records related to back pain Scott may have experienced starting 2015 or arising out of Scott's automobile accident on July 24, 2023.

This modification limits the request to Scott's 2015 back injury and the incident in question, as they are the two pertinent issues pertinent to the determination of Scott's potential earning capacity and her injuries.

With respect to sanctions, Code of Civil Procedure section 1987.2 provides the court may sanction the losing party to a motion to quash a subpoena where the motion was unreasonable or unmeritorious:

Except as specified in subdivision (c), in making an order pursuant to motion made under subdivision (c) of Section 1987 or under Section 1987.1, the court may in its discretion award the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in making or opposing the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees, if the court finds the motion was made or opposed in bad faith or without substantial justification or that one or more of the requirements of the subpoena was oppressive.

(Code Civ. Proc., § 1987.2, subd. (a).)

 • California State University Fullerton, Fullerton, CA
 • LA Trade and Technical College, Los Angeles, CA

Under these circumstances, the court finds that the motion was made and opposed with substantial justification, and as such no sanctions are warranted. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1987.2, subd. (a).)

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, rule 3.1312(a), and Code of Civil Procedure section 1019.5, subdivision (a), no further written order is necessary. The minute order adopting this tentative ruling will serve as the order of the court and service by the clerk will constitute notice of the order.

Re: Albrecht v. American Contractors Indemnity Co.
Case No. 24CECG02084

Hearing Date: May 19, 2026 (Dept. 503)

Motion: Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment, or in the Alternative Summary Adjudication

Tentative Ruling:

To deny defendants' motion for summary judgment, or in the alternative summary adjudication.

Explanation:

Defendants argue that plaintiff cannot prevail on her Consumer Legal Remedies Act (CLRA) claim because defendants Prieto Automotive, Inc. and Flagship Credit Acceptance, LLC never had actual or constructive knowledge of the fact that the subject vehicle had previously been a rental vehicle at the time it sold the car to plaintiff. (See Defendants' Issue 1 in Notice of Motion and Separate Statement of Undisputed Material Facts.) Defendants also contend that they never made any misrepresentations or engaged in any deceptive act regarding the vehicle's rental history. (Defendants' Issue 2.) Thus, they conclude that plaintiff cannot prevail on her CLRA claim, as she cannot show that defendants engaged in any deceptive acts that violated the CLRA. They also seek summary adjudication of the derivative claims against Flagship and American Contractors Indemnity Company, as plaintiff must first prove that the dealership violated the CLRA in order to prevail on her claims against the finance and bond companies.

"The CLRA prohibits "unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices" in transactions involving the sale of goods or services to any consumer. (Civ. Code, § 1770.)" (Gutierrez v. Carmax Auto Superstores California (2018) 19 Cal.App.5th 1234, 1249.) "These deceptive practices proscribed in the CLRA include the concealment or suppression of material facts. This is because fraud or deceit encompasses the suppression of a fact by one who is bound to disclose it, or the suppression of a fact that is contrary to a representation that was made." (Collins v. eMachines, Inc. (2011) 202 Cal.App.4th 249, 255, citations omitted.)

"A failure to disclose a fact can constitute actionable fraud or deceit in four circumstances: (1) when the defendant is the plaintiff's fiduciary; (2) when the defendant has exclusive knowledge of material facts not known or reasonably accessible to the plaintiff; (3) when the defendant actively conceals a material fact from the plaintiff; and (4) when the defendant makes partial representations that are misleading because some other material fact has not been disclosed." (Id. at p. 255, citations omitted.)

"In the CLRA context, a fact is deemed 'material,' and obligates an exclusively knowledgeable defendant to disclose it, if a 'reasonable [consumer]' would deem it important in determining how to act in the transaction at issue.” (Id. at p. 256, citation omitted.) “In other words, a defendant has a duty to disclose when the fact is known to the defendant and the failure to disclose it is “misleading in light of other facts ... that [the defendant] did disclose.”” (Gutierrez, supra, at p.1258, citations omitted.)

However, “[n]ot every omission or nondisclosure of fact is actionable. ... [W]e conclude an omission is actionable under the CLRA if the omitted fact is (1) ‘contrary to a [material] representation actually made by the defendant’ or (2) is ‘a fact the defendant was obliged to disclose.’” (Ibid, citations omitted.) On the other hand, “[a] duty to disclose cannot exist if the defendant was not aware of the facts that were not disclosed.” (Id. at p. 1262.)

Here, defendants argue that they had no duty to disclose the rental history of the subject vehicle because they had no actual or constructive knowledge of the fact that the car had previously been a rental. (Defendants’ Issue 1 in Separate Statement.) However, defendants have not provided any evidence that shows that they lacked either actual knowledge or constructive knowledge of the car’s rental history. They have not submitted any declarations from employees or representatives of Prieto, Flagship, or American Contractors Indemnity stating that they were not aware of the fact that the vehicle had previously been a rental car. They point to the fact that the Carfax report provided to plaintiff at the time of the sale did not show that the car had been a rental vehicle. (Defendants’ UMF Nos. 4-6; see also Exhibit 5 to defendants’ evidence in support of summary judgment.) They also allege that Prieto never saw the AutoCheck report that showed the car’s rental history, so they conclude that Prieto had no knowledge of the fact that the car had been a rental.

However, the fact that the Carfax report does not state that the car was a rental does not establish that Prieto had no actual knowledge of the fact that the car had been a rental; it only shows that the rental history was not reflected in the Carfax report. Prieto may have had actual knowledge from other sources, such as a vehicle history report from another company. Plaintiff was able to obtain a report from Equifax AutoCheck after the sale that showed the car was a rental (UMF No. 7), so Prieto could presumably have obtained a report from AutoCheck or a different company that would have alerted it to the fact that the car had been a rental.

Prieto claims in its memo of points and authorities that it did not see the AutoCheck report before the sale, but it presents no evidence showing that it never conducted any checks beyond the Carfax report to determine the vehicle’s history. Statements in a points and authorities brief are not evidence and are insufficient to meet the defendants’ burden on summary judgment. Without a declaration or other evidence from Prieto stating that it had no actual knowledge of the vehicle’s rental history, Prieto has not met its burden of showing that it had no actual knowledge that the car had been a rental vehicle.

Also, while Prieto claims that it had no constructive knowledge of the vehicle’s prior use as a rental car, again Prieto has not presented any evidence to prove this alleged fact. “Typically, to charge an individual with constructive notice, he must have, ‘actual notice of facts or circumstances which are sufficient to put a prudent person on inquiry as to the existence of the fact with respect to which he is charged with constructive notice.’” (Jones v. Awad (2019) 39 Cal.App.5th 1200, 1209, citation omitted.)

Here, defendants' evidence only shows that the Carfax report did not list the vehicle as having been a rental, not that Prieto had no knowledge of any other facts that might have put it on constructive notice that the car had been used as a rental. For example, plaintiff testified in her deposition that the car had a "No Smoking" sticker in the driver's window that was clearly visible. (Plaintiff's Evidence, Plaintiff's depo., pp. 18:1-17; 19:1-13.) After she bought the car, plaintiff's friend noticed the window sticker and told her that it meant that the car was a rental. (Ibid.) If plaintiff's friend was able to see the sticker and determine that it meant that the car used to be a rental vehicle, then a reasonable finder of fact could infer that Prieto, a professional car dealership, might have seen it as well and reached the same conclusion.

It is common knowledge that car rental companies often put "No Smoking" stickers on their cars, so a reasonable finder of fact could conclude that the presence of a "No Smoking" sticker in the subject car's window placed Prieto on notice of the fact that it might be a former rental car. In other words, a finder of fact could conclude that Prieto had constructive knowledge of the vehicle's history as a rental car. Thus, plaintiff's evidence that there was a "No Smoking" sticker on the car window is enough to raise a triable issue of material fact with regard to whether Prieto had constructive notice of the vehicle's history.

Defendants have also claimed that they made no misrepresentations about the car's history to plaintiff, and in fact she admitted that Prieto's employees never made any statements to her about the car not being a rental before she bought it. (UMF Nos. 2, 3.) However, there is a triable issue of material fact with regard to whether Prieto made misrepresentations or misleading partial disclosures of material fact to plaintiff when it provided her with a Used Vehicle Disclosure form that stated "N/A" on the lines regarding the vehicle's possible status as a former rental vehicle, and by providing her with a Carfax report that said nothing about the vehicle being a former rental. (Defendants' UMF Nos. 4-6, 8, and Defendants' Exhibits 5 and 7.) A reasonable finder of fact could conclude that Prieto's statements were false or misleading, as they gave the impression that the car had never been used a rental car, when in fact it had.

Prieto argues that the Used Vehicle Disclosure form included a disclaimer that stated that the report was being provided "for your information only", that the report was obtained from a third party, and that the "Dealer is not responsible for any errors or omissions in this Report." (UMF No. 8 and Defendants' Exhibit 7.) However, defendants have not cited to any authorities holding that including a disclaimer in a Used Vehicle Disclosure form automatically means that the dealership is not liable for any alleged misrepresentations in the disclosure form. The question of whether defendant's statements in the form were false or misleading must be resolved by the trier of fact, not on summary judgment.

Finally, since defendants have not shown that they are entitled to summary adjudication of the CLRA claim against Prieto, they have also failed to show that they are entitled to summary adjudication of the derivative claims against Flagship and American Contractors Indemnity Company. Therefore, the court intends to deny the motion for summary judgment or adjudication in its entirety.

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, rule 3.1312(a), and Code of Civil Procedure section 1019.5, subdivision (a), no further written order is necessary. The minute order

Tentative Ruling

Re: Vasquez v. Branco Cattle LLC, et al.
Superior Court Case No. 25CECG02230

Hearing Date: May 19, 2026 (Dept. 503)

Motion: Nine Motions by Defendants Branco Cattle LLC, Farm Credit Leasing, Calvin Cole and Joseph Branco to Compel Further Discovery Responses from plaintiffs Izar Vasquez, Isidro Vasquez and Lucino Vasquez

Tentative Ruling:

To deny the motions as untimely. (Code Civ. Proc., §§ 2030.300, subd. (c); 2031.310, subd. (c).)

Explanation:

On 8/14/2025 defendants Branco Cattle LLC, Calvin Cole and Joseph Branco ("defendants" for purposes of these motions) move to compel further responses from the three plaintiffs to Form Interrogatories, Set One, Special Interrogatories, Set One, and Request for Production of Documents, Set One. Plaintiffs' responses were served electronically on 9/29/2025.

A notice of motion to compel must be filed and served within 45 days after verified responses, or any verified supplemental responses, were served, unless the parties agree in writing to extend the time. (Code Civ. Proc., §§ 2030.300, subd. (c); 2031.310, subd. (c).) Failure to file a motion to compel further responses within the 45-day time limit waives the right to compel a further response. (Ibid.; see Vidal Sassoon, Inc. v. Superior Court (1983) 147 Cal.App.3d 681, 685.) The 45-day time limit is mandatory and "jurisdictional" (i.e., the court has no authority to grant a late motion). (Sexton v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal.App.4th 1403, 1410.)

Because the responses were served on 9/29/2025, adding two court days for electronic service (Code Civ. Proc., § 1010.6, subd. (a)(3)), the motion filing deadline was 11/17/2025. The motions were served a month later on 12/18/2025.

Defendants' counsel references a request by plaintiffs' attorney, who was in the process of withdrawing as counsel, that defense counsel refrain from filing motions to compel further responses pending resolution of the motions to be relieved. (Chin Decl., ¶ 8.) Mr. Chin references an Exhibit F, but no Exhibit is attached to the declarations. Thus defendants have not submitted evidence of a written agreement to extend the motion filing deadline. Moreover, the extension of time must specify the date for the extended motion filing deadline. Counsel does not indicate in his declaration that any date was specified. Accordingly, the court lacks jurisdiction to rule on the motions.

The court also notes that defendants did not file a motion to compel further responses from Izar Vasquez to Form Interrogatories, Set One.

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, rule 3.1312(a), and Code of Civil Procedure section 1019.5, subdivision (a), no further written order is necessary. The minute order adopting this tentative ruling will serve as the order of the court and service by the clerk will constitute notice of the order.
