

depositions. However, despite plaintiff's multiple requests for defendants' availability to reschedule the depositions, defendants failed to respond or otherwise make any further attempt to reschedule the depositions.

Defendants contend that the motion should be denied, because they have no connection or involvement with the operation of the business that is the subject of the action. However, service of a proper deposition notice obligates a party's attendance at deposition. (Code Civ. Proc., § 2025.280, subd. (a).) Although defendants contend that an in-person deposition would impose undue burden due to the distance and their respective scheduling conflicts, they do not contend that the location of the deposition—defense counsel's office, is outside of the statutory geographical limits. Further, defendants' argument that the information would be duplicative is unsupported.

Therefore, defendants are subject to an order compelling them to appear for deposition. They are also subject to sanctions for their willful and unjustified failure to appear for their depositions. As a result, the court will order defendants to appear for their depositions in person on a date chosen by plaintiff's counsel at defense counsel's office. The court will also order defendants pay attorney's fees of $2,782.50 and costs of $790. Sanctions against defense counsel does not appear to be warranted.

Pursuant to California Rules of Court, rule 3.1312(a), and Code of Civil Procedure section 1019.5, subdivision (a), no further written order is necessary. The minute order adopting this tentative ruling will serve as the order of the court and service by the clerk will constitute notice of the order.
