TENTATIVE RULING

Hearing

Date: August 28, 2026

Nermen Ayoub v. American Honda Motor Co., Case No. 24STCV26406

Proceeding: Plaintiff's Motion to Compel Deposition of Defendant's PMQ and Production of Documents at Deposition

Ruling: Plaintiff's Motion to Compel is granted. Defendant's PMQ is ordered to appear for deposition on September 23, 2026, at 9:30AM, to testify as to the subjects to be covered by the deposition, provided that any such subjects that relate to defects shall be limited to the defect alleged in the Complaint. Defendant is also ordered to produce at or before the deposition all documents responsive to the request to produce served with the Notice of Deposition that are within Defendant's possession, custody or control, provided that any categories in the request to produce documents at deposition that relate to defects shall be limited to the defect alleged in the Complaint.

In the Opposition to the Motion filed by Defendant, Defendant represents that both parties have agreed to the date of September 23, 2026 for the deposition of Defendant's

PMQ. Therefore, the Court orders that the PMQ appear on that date for the deposition.

Defendant's

opposition did not oppose Plaintiff's Motion to Compel as to the list of subjects on which the PMQ is to be examined or the categories of documents Defendant is to produce at or before the deposition. The Court finds that there is good cause to produce the documents sought in the request to produce provided the categories are limited as ordered above.
