

which seeks to compel information regarding the amounts Plaintiffs seek to recover beyond the amount that Federal has already paid.

The Court finds the Subject Discovery is directly relevant to Plaintiffs' claim for damages. The Court understands that Plaintiffs were previously unable to respond with specific information as to the amount and list of damages sought, as that answer depends upon Federal's determination of what it will pay following its investigation. Nevertheless, Plaintiffs now acknowledge that Federal has informed them that its investigation is complete as of May 8. Thus, Plaintiffs' purported justification for not being able to fully respond to the Subject Discovery appears moot. The Court notes that Plaintiffs' final meet and confer communication, on May 18, conveyed to Federal the same point—now that Federal's investigation is complete, Plaintiffs will endeavor to evaluate the investigation and its results. (See Declaration of Brittany Fowler, Ex. 4, pp. 3-4, 6, 8.) While Plaintiffs do not expressly state they will supplement the responses to the Subject Discovery following their evaluation, that certainly was the takeaway the Court gathered.

Based on the foregoing, Federal's motion is GRANTED.
