Case #	Case Name	Tentative
01409718	Nenning - Trust	TENTATIVE RULING Case: Nenning - Trust 01409718 Calendar No: 1 Date: 08/12/26 MOTION TO ENFORCE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT (ROA 31) Before the court is a motion by Petitioner Gregory M. Nenning ("Petitioner") for an order to enforce the parties' settlement agreement pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 664.6. Probate Code section 664.6 provides, as follows: "If parties to pending litigation stipulate, in a writing signed by the parties outside the presence of the court or orally before the court, for settlement of the case, or part thereof, the court, upon motion, may enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement. If requested by the parties, the court may retain jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the settlement until performance in full of the terms of the settlement." Code of Civil Procedure section 664.6 allows a party to obtain a judgment containing all materials terms of a settlement agreement not yet fully performed by the parties. (Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal.App.4th 1174, 1185; Kilpatrick v. Beebe (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 1527, 1529 [Section 664.6 "do[es] nothing more than provide a streamlined method for reducing a stipulated settlement to judgment."].)

Here, Petitioner claims that Respondent Gail Maureen Booth ("Respondent") has failed to transfer title of specified shares of stock ("Trust Stock") to Petitioner pursuant to the parties' Settlement Agreement executed 5/27/25.

The Settlement Agreement contemplated a two-step process to effectuate the agreed upon stock transfer, as follows:

First, Gail shall have the shares comprising the Trust Stock placed/titled in her name as trustee of the Trust. To that end, within twenty-one (21) days of the Effective Date, Gail shall submit the information and/or documentation required to have the Trust Stock placed/titled in her name. Gail shall act in good faith and use her best efforts to complete this process in ninety (90) days or less.

Second, Gail shall have the shares comprising the Trust Stock transferred to Gregory. To that end, within twenty-one (21) days of receipt of notice or otherwise confirming that the Trust Stock has been placed/titled in her name as trustee of the Trust, Gail shall submit the information and/or documentation required to have the Trust Stock placed/titled in Gregory's name. Gail shall act in good faith and use her best efforts to complete this process in ninety (90) days or less. Gail shall notify Gregory's attorney, Jeffrey M. Hall, within seven (7) days of receipt of notice or otherwise confirming that the Trust Stock has been placed/titled in Gregory's name.

(ROA 25, Hall Decl., Ex. 1, pp. 5-6, emphasis added.)

On 7/15/26, Respondent filed a response to the instant motion in which she carefully outlined all the efforts she has taken to effectuate the transfer of Trust Stock. (ROA 39.) Respondent's outline correlates with the information her counsel shared with Petitioner's counsel as set forth in the Declaration of Jeffrey M. Hall. (ROA 25, ¶¶ 16-27.)

There is no evidence before the court that Respondent failed to act in good faith or failed to use her best efforts to comply with the terms of the Settlement Agreement requiring the transfer of Trust Stock. On the contrary, Respondent had a total of 10 meetings at two different branches of Chase Bank. After such meetings were unfruitful, Respondent opened new accounts with Bank of America and asked a friend that works at Bank of America for assistance. Petitioner's counsel was provided with updates of these efforts. Once Trust Stock was transferred to Respondent's name, she repeatedly requested that Mr. Hall provide her with Petitioner's information necessary to transfer the Trust Stock to Petitioner. Mr. Hall took almost two months to provide the information. While Petitioner is understandably unhappy that the transfer took longer than expected, he has not established that the delay was the result of any bad faith or neglect on the of Respondent. Based on the foregoing, the motion to enforce the Settlement Agreement is DENIED. Respondent's Opposition reflects appointments scheduled with Bank of America and Merrill Lynch on 7/16/26 to proceed with the stock transfer. Petitioner has not filed a Reply or withdrawn this motion. Counsel should be prepared to discuss the status of the stock transfer.

01487738	Sansky - Trust	TENTATIVE RULING Case: Sansky - Trust 01487738 Calendar No: 4 Date: 08/12/26 MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT OR SUMMARY ADJUDICATION (ROA 26) Respondent Heather Sansky ("Respondent") moves for summary judgment or alternatively summary adjudication. (ROA 26.) The motion is DENIED. Background This case involves the Revocable Living Trust of The Stansky Family dated 7/23/08 (the "Trust") created by Bonnie Sansky ("Decedent") and Michael Sansky, both of whom have since passed away. On 6/4/25, Petitioner Angelie Hand ("Petitioner") filed a petition challenging the validity of the Trust based on allegations that Michael Sansky unduly influenced Decedent, that Decedent lacked capacity, and that Decedent's exclusion of Petitioner as a beneficiary of the Trust was a mistake of fact.

Procedural and Evidentiary Issues

As pointed out by Petitioner, Respondent's motion is procedurally defective in that it fails to include a separate statement as required by Code of Civil Procedure section 437c and California Rules of Court, Rule 3.1350. Instead, Respondent's points and authorities includes a list of alleged undisputed material facts.

Moreover, Petitioner correctly argues that the attorney notes and Client Information Report ("Report") from attorney Todd Litman are inadmissible, as there is no supporting declaration. Even documents obtained by subpoena must be supported by a Declaration of Custodian of Records. (Evid. Code §§ 1561-1562 and 1271.) The cover letter provided by Mr. Litman is insufficient to authenticate the documents or to establish the applicability of the business records exception to the hearsay rule.

Moreover, the attorney notes and Report consist of double hearsay. The business records exception may apply to the attorney's notes and Report themselves, but it would not apply to the hearsay statements within the notes. Respondent claims that the statements within the notes are admissible pursuant to the state of mind exception to the hearsay rule. (Evid. Code § 1250.) However, there is no evidence as to who the declarant is since both Bonnie Sansky ("Decedent") and Michael Sansky were present at the time the notes were taken. Likewise, there is no evidence as to who completed the Report.

Merits of the Motion

Setting aside the procedural deficiencies, and assuming for the sake of argument that all of the evidence proffered in support of this motion is admissible, the motion would still be denied.

A party may move for summary judgment in an action if it is contended that the action has no merit or that there is no defense to the action. (Code Civ. Proc., § 437c, subd. (a)(1).) Similarly, a party may move for summary adjudication as to one or more causes of action within an action if the party contends that the cause of action has no merit. (Code Civ. Proc., § 437c, subd. (f)(1).)

"A [defendant] has met his or her burden of showing that a cause of action has no merit if the party has shown that one or more elements of the cause of action, even if not separately pleaded, cannot be established, or that there is a complete defense to the cause of action." (Code Civ. Proc., §437c, subdivision (p)(2).) Once that burden is met, the burden shifts to Plaintiff "to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to the cause of action or a defense thereto." (Ibid.)

A cause of action cannot be established if the undisputed facts presented by the defendant prove the contrary of the plaintiff's allegations as a matter of law. (Brantley v. Pisaro (1996) 42 Cal.App.4th 1591, 1597.) Alternatively, a moving defendant can submit evidence (such as discovery admissions and responses) that demonstrates that plaintiff does not have and cannot reasonably obtain evidence to establish an essential element of his or her cause of action. (Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal.4th 826, 854-855; Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 573, 590 [finding moving defendant may show plaintiff's lack of evidence by factually devoid discovery responses after plaintiff has had adequate opportunity for discovery]; see Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Constr. Co. (1999) 69 Cal.App.4th 64, 80-81 [finding Union Bank rule only applies where discovery requests are broad enough to elicit all such information].)

Merely "pointing out the absence of evidence to support a plaintiff's claim is insufficient to meet the moving defendant's initial burden" on a motion for summary judgment. (Gaggero v. Yura (2003) 108 Cal.App.4th 884, 891.) "The defendant must also produce evidence that the plaintiff cannot reasonably obtain evidence to support his or her claim." (Ibid, citing Aguilar at p. 855, fn. 23).

Here, Respondent has not met her initial burden of making a prima facie showing that Petitioner cannot establish one or more elements of any cause of action in the Petition.

There is nothing in Mr. Litman's notes to establish that they reflect statements made by Decedent as to her intent. The notes could reflect statements made by Michael Sansky or merely reflect Mr. Litman's own impressions. Even if the notes reflect statements made by Decedent, such statements alone do not conclusively establish that Decedent was acting of her own free will. Mr. Litman's notes are simply evidence that must be weighed against other evidence of undue influence, e.g., Decedent's vulnerability, Michael Sansky's authority, tactics used, and the equity of the result.

Respondent has also failed to establish that Petitioner does not possess and cannot reasonably obtain evidence to establish any cause of action in the Petition. Respondent has simply summarized Petitioner's response to Requests for Admission nos. 3-11 and 13-15. Such admissions, if accurately summarized, establish only the following:

- That Petitioner was not present when the Trust was executed;

- That Petitioner does not have in her possession any documentary evidence that the Trust was revoked or improperly executed;
- That Petitioner does not have in her possession any documentary evidence that details Decedent's specific mental or physical condition at the time the Trust was executed;
- That Petitioner has not provided any documents supporting her claims that Decedent was subject to undue influence, that Decedent lacked capacity, or that execution of the trust was the result of mistake of fact;
- That Petitioner has no professional training to assess Decedent's mental or physical capacity;
- That Decedent never expressed an intention to revoke the Trust; and
- That Decedent never expressed an intention to leave Petitioner an interest in the primary asset of the Trust at any time after the Trust was executed.

Respondent has not established that Petitioner would be unable to obtain or provide any of the documents that Petitioner admits are not currently in her possession. Respondent has not established that she requested Petitioner to provide any documents to support the claims in the Petition. And, importantly, Respondent has not established that Petitioner's discovery responses are devoid of any facts or witnesses that would support her claims.

A defendant's discovery responses establish a lack of evidence when they are "factually devoid." (Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal.App.4th 573, 590.) Here, Respondent has merely established that the discovery responses admit a lack of documentary evidence. Respondent has not presented any evidence as to whether she propounded any discovery that requested Petitioner to state facts or identify witnesses in support of a claim, much less evidence that Petitioner failed to identify any such facts or witnesses. In short, the admission of having no documents is conclusive on that narrow point only.

A defendant relying on a plaintiff's factually devoid discovery responses in support of a motion for summary judgment must establish that the discovery propounded was drafted in a way to elicit the necessary evidence that was not provided by the plaintiff. (Scheidung v. Dinwiddie Constr. Co. (1999) 69 Cal.App.4th 64, 80-81.) Here, Respondent states in her moving papers that "[a]s of May 12, 2026, [Petitioner] has not provided a single document, testimony, report, record, or any other evidentiary support for the claims asserted in her Petition." (ROA 26, P&A, ¶ 36.) However, Respondent has presented no evidence that she propounded any discovery that would elicit such information.

		While documentary evidence might be more credible than testimonial evidence, the court is not concerned with the strength or weight of plaintiff's evidence when ruling on a motion for summary judgment. (Harding v. Mac Dougal (1969) 275 Cal.App.2d 396, 399 ["[t]he purpose of the summary judgment is to weed out nonlitigable cases, not to pretry and dispose of doubtfully successful ones."]) On the record presented, the court cannot find that Respondent has established that Petitioner does not have and cannot reasonably obtain evidence in support of her claims. Since Respondent has failed to meet her prima facie burden, the motion can be denied on such grounds alone, and the burden need not shift to Petitioner to show the existence of a triable issue of material fact. (Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co., supra, 25 Cal.4th at p. 850.)
