

Relief is not available under Kucker v. Kucker (2015) 92 Cal.App.4th 90. Kucker concerned only transfer of personal property to a trust, not transfer of real property to a trust. Id. at 92 & 95. Kucker's discussion of the effect of general assignment as to real property is merely dicta.

Nor is relief available under Ukkestad, supra. Ukkestad concerned real property owned by settlor at the time the funding writing was executed, as petitioner concedes: the trust provision in Ukkestad "assigned the ownership of all of [settlor's] real property to the trustees of the Trust effective immediately." Id. at 159 (emphasis added). Ukkestad did not involve after-acquired property. It does not hold that later-acquired real property can be automatically funded to a trust where settlors have taken title contrary to the trust. Petitioner's supplemental argument notes that there no holding prohibiting successful use of an after-acquired-property writing. This is unsurprising, as the case did not involve any such question, but it also provides no basis to extend Ukkestad's holding far beyond the facts of the case.

Petitioner cites three additional cases, Bumb v. Bennett (1958) 51 Cal.2d 294, 302; Brusseau v. Hill (1927) 201 Cal. 255; and Pettigrew v. Dobbelaar (1883) 63 Cal. 396.

Bumb concerned the validity of an assignment of real property by a partnership against a claim to the same property by a levying creditor. It has no apparent application to this proceeding and petitioner offers no explanation for why it was cited.

Brusseau v. Hill concerned an inter vivos transfer of property contemporaneously owned and possessed by grantor at the time he gave grantee a writing purporting to make a gift of the property, together with keys and immediate possession.

Pettigrew's holdings are also limited to contemporaneously owned property. The case concerned two deeds. The first described real properties by map number and lot numbers; the second, as "all lands and real estate belonging to the [grantee]." As to the second deed, the California Supreme Court tersely held: "If the lands in controversy belong to [grantor] they passed by the deed" Pettigrew, supra, at 397 (emphasis in original).

Relief also cannot be granted on the basis of the pourover will. Petitioner initially argued the court should grant relief to allow petitioner to avoid "unnecessarily expensive, time-consuming, . . . waste[ful]" probate which would involve "considerable and disproportionate time and expense" (Petition, ¶ 10); petitioner has now clarified that she "does not rely on the pourover will" for this petition (Supplement, II.d).

These calendar notes are not a tentative ruling by the court on the merits of the petition. They are provided to assist the court and the parties to prepare for the hearing. Local Rule 80.1.4.
