CVRI2501075	LOGGINS VS DMSI STAFFING LLC	MOTION TO STAY CASE

Tentative Ruling:

DENY

Effective January 1, 2024, CCP § 1294(a) eliminated the automatic stay of trial court proceedings that previously flowed from CCP § 916. Although CCP § 1294(a) expressly eliminated the automatic stay, the Court retains its discretion to stay such proceedings in the interests of justice. In determining whether to issue a stay, courts traditionally balance four factors: (1) whether the stay applicant made a strong showing that it is likely to succeed on the merits on appeal; (2) whether the applicant will be irreparably injured absent a stay; (3) whether the stay will substantially injure other parties; and (4) whether the stay is in the public interest. (Finder v. Leprino Foods Co., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100417, at 13-14, citing Nken v. Holder 556 U.S. 418, 434 (2009)).

Here, Defendant moving party has not established that it is likely to succeed on the merits of its appeal. Defendant's outright refusal to pay the initial arbitration retainer is willful nonperformance. Defendant cannot claim that their "nonpayment of fees resulted from a good faith mistake, inadvertence, or other excusable neglect”. (See Hohenshelt v. Superior Court (2025) 18 Cal.5th 310, at 312.) A party’s willful nonperformance, gross negligence, or fraudulent behavior constitutes a waiver of arbitration.

Next, Defendant has not shown that it will suffer irreparable injury if litigation proceeds. Defendants’ “irreparable injury” showing is entirely conclusory and is based on the normal incidents and costs of litigation. Further, granting a stay would substantially harm Plaintiff, who has already been subjected to delays and procedural maneuvering by Defendant. Finally, the public interest here favors denying the motion because allowing Defendant to halt the litigation through an appeal of an arbitration denial would undermine the stated purpose of the senate bill that amended CCP § 1294(a), Sen. Bill No.365.
