Case Name: Nikka Freeman, et al. v. Neil Patel, et al.

Case No.: 24-CV-444354

Factual and Procedural Background

This is a personal injury action brought by plaintiffs Nikka Freeman and Alicia Freeman (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) as a result of bedbug bites during their stay at a hotel owned and operated by defendants Neil Patel, Morgan Hill Hotel, LP, and Hampton Inn Morgan Hill (collectively, “Defendants”).

On July 31, 2024, Plaintiff filed a complaint alleging causes of action for: (1) Battery; (2) Negligence; (3) Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress; (4) Fraudulent Concealment; (5) Private Nuisance; (6) Public Nuisance; and (7) Breach of Contract.

On April 28, 2025, defendant Morgan Hill Hotel, LP (erroneously sued and served as Hampton Inn Morgan Hill) (“Morgan Hill”) filed the following motions: (1) a demurrer to the first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh causes of action; and (2) a motion to strike punitive damages allegations. Plaintiffs did not file oppositions to the motions. The motions were heard and submitted on October 15, 2025. The court (Hon. Monahan) thereafter sustained the demurrer with leave to amend and the motion to strike was rendered moot.

On November 13, 2025, Plaintiff filed the operative first amended complaint (“FAC”) asserting the same causes of action against Defendants.

On December 29, 2025, defendant Morgan Hill filed the motions presently before the court, a demurrer and motion to strike to the FAC. Plaintiffs filed written oppositions. Morgan Hill filed reply papers.

A further case management conference is also scheduled for July 29, 2026.

Demurrer to the FAC

Defendant Morgan Hill argues the first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh causes of action are subject to demurrer for failure to state a valid claim and uncertainty. (Code Civ. Proc., § 430.10, subds. (e), (f).)

Untimely Oppositions

In reply, defendant Morgan Hill contends the court should not consider the oppositions to the motions as they were untimely filed and served.

Code of Civil Procedure section 1005, subdivision (b), requires all opposing papers to be filed and served at least nine court days before the hearing. No paper may be rejected for filing on the ground that it was untimely submitted for filing. (Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1300(d).) If the court, in its discretion, refuses to consider a late filed paper, the minutes or order must indicate. (Ibid.)

Here, the instant demurrer and motion to strike were filed on December 29, 2025. The hearing on the motions is scheduled for July 29, 2026. Thus, Plaintiffs were required to file and serve their oppositions no later than July 16, 2026 to be considered timely. Plaintiffs however did not file and serve their oppositions until July 20, 2026, two court days beyond the deadline imposed by the rules of court. Despite the late oppositions, defendant Morgan Hill timely filed and served reply papers addressing the substantive merits of the oppositions. Furthermore, Morgan Hill does not identify any prejudice as a result of the untimely oppositions nor does there appear to be any prejudice in this instance. The court therefore will consider the merits of the oppositions. (See Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal.4th 797, 806 [courts have a policy favoring disposition of cases on the merits rather than on procedural grounds].) The court admonishes Plaintiffs' counsel to comply with the court rules and procedures with respect to future filings.

Failure to State a Valid Claim

“ ‘The absence of any allegation essential to a cause of action renders it vulnerable to a general demurrer. A ruling on a general demurrer is thus a method of deciding the merits of the cause of action on assumed facts without a trial.’ [Citation.] ‘Conversely, a general demurrer will be overruled if the complaint contains allegations of every fact essential to the statement of a cause of action, regardless of mistaken theory or imperfections of form that make it subject to special demurrer.’ [Citation.]” (Morris v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. (2022) 78 Cal.App.5th 279, 291-292 (Morris).)

“A complaint, with certain exceptions, need only contain a ‘statement of the facts constituting the cause of action, in ordinary and concise language’ [citation] and will be upheld ‘ “so long as [it] gives notice of the issues sufficient to enable preparation of a defense.” ’ [Citation.] ‘[T]o withstand a demurrer, a complaint must allege ultimate facts, not evidentiary facts or conclusions of law.’ [Citation.]” (Morris, supra, 78 Cal.App.5th at p. 292.)

First Cause of Action: Battery

“The essential elements of a cause of action for battery are: (1) defendant touched plaintiff, or caused plaintiff to be touched, with the intent to harm or offend plaintiff; (2) plaintiff did not consent to the touching; (3) plaintiff was harmed or offended by defendant’s conduct; and (4) a reasonable person in plaintiff’s position would have been offended by the touching.” (So v. Shin (2013) 212 Cal.App.4th 652, 669.)

The tort is not limited to direct body-to-body contact. (See Mount Vernon Fire Insurance Corporation v. Oxnard Hospitality Enterprise, Inc. (2013) 219 Cal.App.4th 876, 881.) Instead, the intent element requires that the defendant either intended to commit a battery or was substantially certain that battery would result from his/her conduct. (CACI 1320; Ashcraft v. King (1991) 228 Cal.App.3d 604, 613 (Ashcraft).)

“In an action for civil battery the element of intent is satisfied if the evidence (or allegations) shows defendant acted with a ‘willful disregard’ of the plaintiff’s rights.” (Ashcraft, supra, 228 Cal.App.3d at p. 613.)

In the first cause of action, Plaintiffs allege in pertinent part:

“Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, intentionally assigned Plaintiffs to a room that they knew, or reasonably should have known, presented a substantial certainty of harmful and offensive contact with bedbugs. Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, knew that assigning a room with a known or suspected infestation would cause Plaintiffs to be bitten and come into contact with bedbugs, yet Defendants deliberately failed to warn Plaintiffs or take corrective action.” (FAC at ¶ 54.)

On demurrer, defendant Morgan Hill argues Plaintiffs do not plead sufficient facts to establish the required intent to support a battery claim. The court is not persuaded as Plaintiffs specifically allege that:

“The intent element of battery is satisfied because Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, knew with substantial certainty that harmful and offensive contact would result by renting and assigning an infested room to Plaintiffs. Defendants’ concealment of the infestation, failure to disclose the hazardous condition, and deliberate decision to assign the room despite prior knowledge constitute intentional conduct and willful disregard for Plaintiffs’ safety.” (FAC at ¶ 55.)

The FAC further alleges that: (1) Defendants knew the subject hotel had a prior bedbug infestation through online guest reviews; (2) Defendants deliberately chose to turn a blind eye to this infestation and prior guest complaints; (3) front desk personnel and hotel management knew about the bedbug infestation in the hotel and specifically, Plaintiffs’ room, and intentionally did not disclose this material fact to Plaintiffs at check-in; and (4) Defendants deliberately chose to not eradicate the bedbug infestation which caused Plaintiffs to be bitten by bedbugs. (FAC at ¶¶ 31, 32, 34, 41.) These supporting facts along with the allegations in the first cause of action are sufficient to state a claim for battery as Defendants’ intentional conduct made it substantially certain that Plaintiffs would be bitten bedbugs. Moreover, defendant Morgan Hill does not direct the court to any legal authority suggesting that a battery claim cannot arise from a bedbug infestation in this context.

Consequently, the demurrer to the first cause of action on the ground that it fails to state a valid claim is OVERRULED.

Third Cause of Action: Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress

The elements of an intentional infliction of emotional distress claim are (1) the defendant’s conduct was extreme and outrageous; (2) the defendant intended to cause emotional distress or recklessly disregarded the probability of causing emotional distress; (3) the plaintiff suffered severe emotional distress; and (4) the defendant’s outrageous conduct was the cause of the severe emotional distress. (Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal.3d 197, 209.)

On demurrer, defendant Morgan Hill first asserts there are no facts pled establishing extreme and outrageous conduct to support a claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress.

“An essential element of a cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress is ‘extreme and outrageous conduct by the defendant.’ [Citation.]” (Yurick v. Super. Ct. (1989) 209 Cal.App.3d 1116, 1123.) “[T]he standard for judging outrageous conduct does not provide a ‘bright line’ rigidly separating that which is actionable from that which is not. Indeed, its generality hazards a case-by-case appraisal of conduct filtered through the prism of the appraiser’s values, sensitivity threshold, and standards of civility.” (Id. at p. 1128.) “[I]t is generally held that there can be no recovery for mere profanity, obscenity, or abuse, without circumstances of aggravation, or for insults, indignities, or threats which are considered to amount to nothing more than mere annoyances. The plaintiff cannot recover merely because of hurt feelings.” (Ibid.) Thus, “[c]onduct to be outrageous must be so extreme as to exceed all bounds of that usually tolerated in a civilized community.” (Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal.4th 965, 1001.)

“Moreover, to support the cause of action, ‘[i]t is not enough that the conduct be intentional and outrageous. It must be conduct directed at the plaintiff, or occur in the presence of a plaintiff of whom the defendant is aware.’ [Citation.]” (Ess v. Eskaton Properties (2002) 97 Cal.App.4th 120, 130.)

In the third cause of action, Plaintiffs allege in relevant part:

“The conduct of Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, was so extreme as to exceed all bounds tolerated in a civilized community, in that Defendants intentionally prioritized occupancy and revenue over guest safety; intentionally maintained a room in circulation despite known or suspected infestation; intentionally failed to train or supervise employees in sanitation, inspection, or pest control; intentionally failed to disclose material facts to Plaintiffs; and intentionally ignored obvious indicators that guests would be exposed to harm.” (FAC at ¶ 82.)

The pleaded facts suggest there may be extreme and outrageous conduct by defendant Morgan Hill who, despite prior knowledge about the bedbugs, deliberately failed to eradicate the infestation and intentionally concealed the existence of the bedbugs from Plaintiffs during check-in at the hotel. But, as pointed out on demurrer, there are no facts demonstrating that such extreme and outrageous conduct was directed toward Plaintiffs or in their presence so no cause of action has been stated.

Also, “[o]nly emotional distress of ‘such substantial quantity or enduring quality’ that an individual in civilized society should not be expected to endure it constitutes severe emotional distress. [Citation.]” (Angie M. v. Super. Ct. (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 1217, 1227 (Angie M.)). In Angie M., the Court of Appeal determined the plaintiff failed to allege sufficient facts showing she suffered “severe” emotional distress in an action for unlawful seduction and childhood sexual abuse. The appellate court observed that the plaintiff “pleaded no facts demonstrating the nature, extent or duration of her alleged emotional distress.” (Ibid.; see Bogard v. Emplrs Casualty Co. (1985) 164 Cal.App.3d 602, 617 [“Although appellants alleged they suffered severe emotional distress, they failed to set forth any facts which indicate the nature or extent of any mental suffering incurred as a result of Employers’ alleged outrageous conduct.”].)

Defendant Morgan Hill persuasively argues that Plaintiffs fail to plead facts establishing severe emotional distress and the nature and extent of any emotional suffering. Plaintiffs appear to concede this point as they fail to address it in their opposition. (See Sehulster Tunnels/Pre-Con v. Traylor Brothers, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal.App.4th 1328, 1345, fn. 16 [failure to address point is “equivalent to a concession”]; see also Westside Center Associates v. Safeway Stores 23, Inc. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 507, 529 [failure to challenge a contention in a brief results in the concession of that argument].)

Therefore, the demurrer to the third cause of action is SUSTAINED for failure to state a valid claim.

Fourth Cause of Action: Fraudulent Concealment

“[T]he elements of an action for fraud and deceit based on concealment are: (1) the defendant must have concealed or suppressed a material fact, (2) the defendant must have been under a duty to disclose the fact to the plaintiff, (3) the defendant must have intentionally concealed or suppressed the fact with the intent to defraud the plaintiff, (4) the plaintiff must have been unaware of the fact and would not have acted as he did if he had known of the concealed or suppressed fact, and (5) as a result of the concealment or suppression of the fact, the plaintiff must have sustained damage.” (Marketing West, Inc. v. Sanyo Fisher (USA) Corp. (1992) 6 Cal.App.4th 603, 612-613.)

“Fraud must be pleaded with specificity rather than with ‘general and conclusory allegations.’” [Citation.] The specificity requirement means a plaintiff must allege facts showing how, when, where, to whom, and by what means the representations were made, and, in the case of a corporate defendant, the plaintiff must allege the names of the persons who made the representations, their authority to speak on behalf of the corporation, to whom they spoke, what they said or wrote, and when the representation was made. [Citation.]” (West v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. (2013) 214 Cal.App.4th 780, 793 (West).) The specificity requirement applies equally to a cause of action for fraud and deceit based on concealment. (Cansino v. Bank of America (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 1462, 1472.)

Courts enforce the specificity requirement in consideration of its two purposes. (West, supra, 214 Cal.App.4th at p. 793.) The first purpose is to give notice to the defendant with sufficiently definite charges that the defendant can meet them. (Ibid.) The second is to permit a court to weed out meritless fraud claims on the basis of the pleadings; thus, the pleading should be sufficient to enable the court to determine whether, on the facts pleaded, there is any foundation, prima facie at least, for the charge of fraud. (Ibid.)

In the fourth cause of action, Plaintiffs allege in pertinent part:

“Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, actively concealed the existence of bedbugs in the Subject Hotel and in Plaintiffs’ room by: (1) intentionally failing to inform Plaintiffs of prior or suspected bedbug activity; (2) intentionally failing to warn Plaintiffs of the unsafe condition of the room; (3) intentionally maintaining infested rooms in circulation; and (4) intentionally failing to implement or enforce procedures that would have resulted in the discovery and treatment of the infestation.” (FAC at ¶ 92.)

Here, the court agrees with defendant Morgan Hill that Plaintiffs fail to plead fraud with the required specificity to state a cause of action. In particular, Plaintiffs do not allege facts showing Morgan Hill intended to defraud them. Nor do Plaintiffs plead facts sufficient to establish justifiable reliance. (See Hoffman v. 162 North Wolfe LLC (2014) 228 Cal.App.4th 1178, 1185 [as with all fraud claims, concealment requires showing of justifiable reliance]) Plaintiffs do not proffer any substantive arguments in opposition addressing these points and thus the demurrer is sustainable on this ground.

Accordingly, the demurrer to the fourth cause of action is SUSTAINED for failure to state a valid claim.

Fifth Cause of Action: Private Nuisance

Civil Code section 3479 defines a nuisance as:

“Anything which is injurious to health, including, but not limited to, the illegal sale of controlled substances, or is indecent or offensive to the senses, or an obstruction to the free use of property, so as to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, or unlawfully obstructs the free passage or use, in the customary manner, of any navigable lake, or river, bay, stream, canal, or basin, or any public park, square, street, or highway, is a nuisance.” (Civ. Code, § 3479.)

California law characterizes a nuisance as either a “public nuisance” or a “private nuisance.”

“A private nuisance claim is a claim for ‘a nontrespassory interference with the private use and enjoyment of land.’ [Citation.]” (Wilson v. Southern California Edison Co. (2018) 21 Cal.App.5th 786, 802.) To establish a private nuisance claim, a plaintiff must plead and prove: (1) an interference with the plaintiff’s use and enjoyment of that property; (2) that the invasion of the plaintiff’s interest in the use and enjoyment of the land was substantial, i.e., that it caused the plaintiff to suffer “substantial actual damage”; and (3) the interference with the protected interest must not only be substantial, but it must also be unreasonable, i.e., it must be “of such a nature, duration or amount as to constitute unreasonable interference with the use and enjoyment of the land.” (Ibid.)

In the fifth cause of action, Plaintiffs allege in relevant part:

“At the time Plaintiffs occupied the room, Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, permitted, maintained, and failed to remedy a harmful and offensive condition, namely an active infestation of Cimex lectularius (“bedbugs”) in the room assigned to Plaintiffs. This infestation constituted a substantial, continuous, and unreasonable interference with Plaintiffs’ right to use, occupy, and enjoy the premises in a manner safe, sanitary, and consistent with ordinary guest expectations.” (FAC at ¶ 102.)

“It is long established that ‘an action based upon a private nuisance as that term is known to the law may be maintained only by those whose property rights have been invaded; that while a [lawful] possessor of land is allowed to recover incidental damages for harms to his person or chattels in an action for private nuisance, the action is not available for the protection of those interests to a person who has no property rights or privileges in land.’ [Citation.]” (Multani v. Knight (2018) 23 Cal.App.5th 837, 855; see Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal.App.3d 116, 125 [“Although ‘any interest sufficient to be dignified as a property right’ will support an action based on a private nuisance, and this includes within its purview a tenancy for a term, such right does not inure in favor of a licensee, lodger or employee.”]; see also Edwards v. City of Los Angeles (1941) 48 Cal.App.2d 62, 67 [“Guests in a hotel...are generally mere licensees and not tenants. They have only a personal contract, and acquire no interest in the realty.”].)

As pointed out on demurrer, Plaintiffs lack standing to pursue a private nuisance claim as they did not maintain any property rights invaded by defendant Morgan Hill. Rather, Plaintiffs were merely lodgers at the subject hotel without any property rights in the room they occupied for one night. Plaintiffs appear to concede the standing argument as they fail to address it in their opposition to the motion.

Consequently, the demurrer to the fifth cause of action is SUSTAINED for failure to state a valid claim.

Sixth Cause of Action: Public Nuisance

“ ‘A public nuisance is one which affects at the same time an entire community or neighborhood, or any considerable number of persons, although the extent of the annoyance or damage inflicted upon individuals may be unequal.’ [Citation.] As the California Supreme Court has explained, ‘public nuisances are offenses against, or interferences with, the exercise of rights common to the public.’ [Citation.] The interference must be both substantial and objectively unreasonable. [Citations.]” (Melton v. Boustred (2010) 183 Cal.App.4th 521, 542 (Melton)).

“The elements ‘of a cause of action for public nuisance include the existence of a duty and causation.’ [Citations.] Public nuisance liability ‘does not hinge on whether the defendant owns, possesses or controls the property, nor on whether he is in a position to abate the nuisance; the critical question is whether the defendant created or assisted in the creation of the nuisance.’ [Citations.]” (Melton, supra, 183 Cal.App.4th at p. 542.)

In the sixth cause of action, Plaintiffs allege in pertinent part:

“Defendants, and DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, created, permitted, and maintained a condition at the Subject Hotel that constituted a public nuisance, namely the presence and spread of Cimex lectularius (“bedbugs”) in guest rooms, common areas, and furnishings. The bedbug infestation constituted a condition that was injurious to health, indecent, offensive to the senses, and interfered with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property by members of the public who visited, stayed at, or used the facilities of the Subject Hotel.” (FAC at ¶ 111.)

“The presence of bedbugs at the Subject Hotel affected not only Plaintiffs but also other hotel guests and members of the public who patronized the property. The infestation posed a health and safety hazard, impacted the comfort and use of individuals occupying the premises, and created a risk of spreading bedbugs beyond the hotel into the personal belongings, homes, and vehicles of guests. The condition was one that affected a substantial number of people simultaneously, and therefore constituted an interference with a public right.” (FAC at ¶ 113.)

“Defendants’ failure to maintain sanitary conditions and their failure to remedy or prevent bedbug infestations was unreasonable and unlawful, and constituted a substantial, continuous, and ongoing interference with public rights recognized under California Civil Code §§ 3479 and 3480.” (FAC at ¶ 114.)

The court finds there is no valid claim stated for public nuisance as Plaintiffs do not allege facts demonstrating the bedbug infestation affected the community at large. Instead, as stated above, Plaintiffs allege only a risk that the bedbugs would spread and impact areas beyond the hotel. (See FAC at ¶ 113.) Plaintiffs’ speculation regarding a perceived risk of bedbug infestation is not sufficient to state a claim for relief. Furthermore, as pointed out on demurrer, Plaintiffs fail to show that their harm (bitten by a bedbug) was any different than the harm suffered by any other person being bitten by a bedbug. (See CACI 2020 [to establish a public nuisance claim, plaintiff must show that he or she suffered harm that was different from the type of harm suffered by the general public].) Plaintiffs appear to concede this final point as it is not addressed in their opposition to the motion.

Therefore, the demurrer to the sixth cause of action is SUSTAINED for failure to state a valid claim.

Seventh Cause of Action: Breach of Contract

To prevail on a cause of action for breach of contract, the plaintiff must allege and prove: (1) the contract, (2) the plaintiff’s performance of the contract or excuse for nonperformance, (3) the defendant’s breach, and (4) the resulting damage to the plaintiff. (Richman v. Hartley (2014) 224 Cal.App.4th 1182, 1186.)

If the action is based on an alleged breach of a written contract, the terms must be set out verbatim in the body of the complaint or a copy of the contract must be attached and incorporated by reference. (Otworth v. Southern Pacific Transportation (1985) 166 Cal.App.3d 452, 459.) More recently, in an action based on a written contract, the plaintiff may plead the legal effect of the contract rather than its precise language. (See Construction Protective Services, Inc. v. TIG Specialty Ins. Co. (2002) 29 Cal.4th 189, 198-199.)

In the seventh cause of action, Plaintiffs allege they entered into a valid and enforceable contract with Defendants when they reserved, paid for, and checked into a guest room at the subject hotel. (FAC at ¶ 119.) The alleged contract appears to be written as the contractual obligations arise from the reservation agreement, the check-in transaction, the terms and representations contained in the hotel’s marketing materials, and California law. (Ibid.) Thus, Plaintiffs must attach a copy of the contract, plead the terms verbatim in the body of the FAC, or plead the legal effect of the contract. Plaintiffs have not done so here and therefore the demurrer is sustainable on this ground.

Accordingly, the demurrer to the seventh cause of action is SUSTAINED for failure to state a valid claim.

Uncertainty

“ ‘ “[D]emurrers for uncertainty are disfavored, and are granted only if the pleading is incomprehensible that a defendant cannot reasonably respond.” ’ [Citations.] ‘ “A demurrer for uncertainty is strictly construed, even where a complaint is in some respects uncertain, because ambiguities can be clarified under modern discovery procedures.” ’ [Citations.]” (A.J. Fistes Corp. v. GDL Best Contractors, Inc. (2019) 38 Cal.App.5th 677, 695.)

“[U]nder our liberal pleading rules, where the complaint contains substantive factual allegations sufficiently apprising defendant of the issues it is being asked to meet, a demurrer for uncertainty should be overruled or plaintiff given leave to amend. (Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal.App.3d 135, 139, fn. 2.)

According to the notice of motion, defendant Morgan Hill argues the first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh causes of action are subject to demurrer on the ground of uncertainty. But, this ground for demurrer is undeveloped as the moving papers only address the uncertainty argument as to the fourth cause of action. (See Allen v. City of Sacramento (2015) 234 Cal.App.4th 41, 52 [“We are not required to examine undeveloped claims or to supply arguments for the litigants”].) And, the specificity argument raised by Morgan Hill to the fraudulent concealment claim constitutes a ground for demurrer based on the failure to state a valid claim, not uncertainty. (See Wilhelm v. Pray, Price, Williams & Russell (1986) 186 Cal.App.3d 1324, 1331[“[T]he complaint fails to plead with specificity a factual basis for how Cohen ‘knew’ the representations she communicated to Goodman on behalf of Leedy were false.”].) Thus, the demurrer is not sustainable as to these claims on the ground of uncertainty.

Consequently, the demurrer to the first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh causes of action on the ground of uncertainty is OVERRULED.

Leave to Amend

Should the court sustain any part of the demurrer, Plaintiffs request further leave to amend.

“The plaintiff bears the burden of proving there is a reasonable possibility of amendment.” (Rakestraw v. California Physicians’ Service (2000) 81 Cal.App.4th 39, 43 (Rakestraw).) To satisfy this burden, a plaintiff “must show in what manner he (or she) can amend his (or her) complaint and how that amendment will change the legal effect of his pleading.” (Goodman v. Kennedy (1976) 18 Cal.3d 335, 349.) “Plaintiff must clearly and specifically set forth the ‘applicable substantive law’ [citation] and the legal basis for amendment, i.e., the elements of the cause of action and authority for it. Further, plaintiff must set forth factual allegations that sufficiently state all required elements of that cause of action. [Citations.] Allegations must be factual and specific, not vague or conclusionary.” (Rakestraw, supra, 81 Cal.App.4th at pp. 43-44.)

As stated above, the court sustained the demurrer to the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh causes of action. Plaintiffs have already been given an opportunity for leave to amend in response to a demurrer where they did not file written opposition. That said, this order, unlike the prior order on demurrer, provides guidance to Plaintiffs on the deficiencies to be corrected in their amended pleading. Furthermore, the court finds the aforementioned defects to be easily correctable and thus will afford one more opportunity for leave to amend. (See Angie M., supra, 37 Cal.App.4th at p. 1227 [“The remaining pleading deficiencies regarding the nature and severity of the alleged emotional distress were easily corrected and leave to amend was granted.”].) Therefore, leave to amend is GRANTED as to the third, fourth, sixth, and seventh causes of action. The court however denies leave to amend the fifth cause of action which fails as a matter of law. (See Berkeley Police Assn. v. City of Berkeley (1977) 76 Cal.App.3d 931, 942 [“[W]here the nature of plaintiff’s claim is clear, but under substantive law no liability exists, leave to amend should be denied, for no amendment could change the result.”].)

Motion to Strike Punitive Damage Allegations

Defendant Morgan Hill moves to strike the punitive damages allegations in the FAC because: (1) Plaintiffs fail to allege specific facts supporting a claim for punitive damages against Morgan Hill; (2) Plaintiffs have not alleged sufficient facts for corporate ratification of alleged wrongful conduct; and (3) the punitive damage claims are ambiguous.

Analysis

“In order to state a prima facie claim for punitive damages, a complaint must set forth the elements as stated in the general punitive damage statute, Civil Code section 3294. [Citation.] These statutory elements include allegations that the defendant has been guilty of oppression, fraud or malice. [Citation.] ‘“Malice” ’ is defined in the statute as conduct ‘intended by the defendant to cause injury to the plaintiff or despicable conduct which is carried on by the defendant with a willful and conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others.’ [Citations.] ‘“Oppression” means despicable conduct that subjects a person to cruel and unjust hardship in conscious disregard of that person’s rights.’ [Citation.] ‘“Fraud” ’ is ‘an intentional misrepresentation, deceit, or concealment of a material fact known to the defendant with the intention on the part of the defendant of thereby depriving a person of property or legal rights or otherwise causing injury.’ [Citation.]” (Turman v. Turning Point of Central California, Inc. (2010) 191 Cal.App.4th 53, 63.)

Also, “[a]n employer shall not be liable for damages pursuant to subdivision (a), based upon acts of an employee of the employer, unless the employer had advance knowledge of the unfitness of the employee and employed him or her with a conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others or authorized or ratified the wrongful conduct for which the damages are awarded or was personally guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice. With respect to a corporate employer, the advance knowledge and conscious disregard, authorization, ratification or act of oppression, fraud, or malice must be on the part of an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporation.” (Civ. Code, § 3294, subd. (b).)

“In determining whether a complaint states facts sufficient to sustain punitive damages, the challenged allegations must be read in context with the other facts alleged in the complaint. Further, even though certain language pleads ultimate facts or conclusions of law, such language when read in context with the facts alleged as to defendants’ conduct may adequately plead the evil motive requisite to recovery of punitive damages. [Citation.]” (Monge v. Super. Ct. (1986) 176 Cal.App.3d 503, 510.)

As explained above, the court sustained the demurrer to the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth causes of action. Thus, the motion to strike the third cause of action, fourth cause of action, and paragraphs 106, 116, and 117 (item nos. 17-21 in the notice of motion to strike) in the FAC is MOOT.

The second cause of action is a claim for negligence, a nonintentional tort. “Where nonintentional torts involve conduct performed without intent to harm, punitive damages may be assessed ‘when the conduct constitutes conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others.’ [Citations.] ‘ “[A] conscious disregard of the safety of others may [thus] constitute malice within the meaning of section 3294 of the Civil Code. In order to justify an award of punitive damages on this basis, the plaintiff must establish that the defendant was aware of the probable dangerous consequences of his conduct, and that he willfully and deliberately failed to avoid those consequences.” ’ [Citations.] Consequently, to establish malice, ‘it is not sufficient to show only that the defendant’s conduct was negligent, grossly negligent or even reckless.’ [Citation.]” (Bell v. Sharp Cabrillo Hosp. (1989) 212 Cal.App.3d 1034, 1044.)

As to the negligence claim, defendant Morgan Hill moves to strike the phrase “reckless disregard” in paragraph 62 and the request for punitive damages in paragraph 77 (item nos. 15-16 in the notice of motion to strike). The court finds Plaintiffs do not plead sufficient facts to support a claim for punitive damages in connection with the negligence cause of action. Therefore, the motion to strike these allegations is GRANTED.

The balance of the motion to strike is directed toward certain factual background allegations, the prayer for relief, and the entirety of the battery cause of action which survived demurrer (item nos. 1-14 and 22 in the notice of motion to strike). Here, the court concludes there are insufficient facts to support an award of punitive damages. Presumably, Plaintiffs are relying on malice to establish an entitlement to punitive damages and thus they should set forth facts with respect to malice specifically as to this defendant in their amended pleading. Also, as pointed out in the motion, Plaintiffs do not plead facts showing an officer, director or managing agent had advance knowledge of the alleged unfitness of any employee or staff who engaged in recklessness, malice, oppression or fraud. As a consequence, the motion to strike these allegations is GRANTED.

Leave to Amend

Should the court grant any part of the motion, Plaintiffs again request leave to amend. Unlike the demurrer, the court’s prior order did not address the motion to strike which was rendered moot by the sustaining of the demurrer. Thus, as the court, for the first time, identifies deficiencies with respect to the request for punitive damages, Plaintiffs will be afforded an opportunity for leave to amend. (See Price v. Dames & Moore (2001) 92 Cal.App.4th 355, 360 [with respect to motion to strike, leave to amend is routinely and liberally granted to give the plaintiff a chance to cure the defect in question].) Accordingly, leave to amend is GRANTED.

Disposition

The demurrer to the first cause of action in the FAC on the ground that it fails to state a valid claim is OVERRULED.

The demurrer to the third, fourth, sixth, and seventh causes of action in the FAC is SUSTAINED WITH 10 DAYS LEAVE TO AMEND for failure to state a valid claim.

The demurrer to the fifth cause of action is SUSTAINED WITHOUT LEAVE TO AMEND for failure to state a valid claim.

The demurrer to the first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh causes of action on the ground of uncertainty is OVERRULED.

The motion to strike item nos. 17-21 in the notice of motion to strike is MOOT.

The motion to strike item nos. 15-16 in the notice of motion to strike is GRANTED WITH 10 DAYS LEAVE TO AMEND.

The motion to strike item nos. 1-14 and 22 in the notice of motion to strike is GRANTED WITH 10 DAYS LEAVE TO AMEND.

The court will prepare the Order.

Case Name: Silicon Valley TaxPayers Association Inc. et al. vs City of Campbell et al.

Case No.: 25CV455853

Plaintiff moves to strike or tax certain costs claimed by Defendants, the prevailing parties, including (1) a court reporter cancellation fee of $850, and (2) electronic filing fees incurred through Defendants' selected e-filing service provider. Plaintiff contends the costs are either unnecessary or unreasonable, arguing that Defendants should have avoided the reporter cancellation charge and should have used a less expensive "self-service" e-filing option rather than a preferred e-filing vendor. Plaintiff alternatively contends any recoverable costs should be apportioned.

A prevailing party is entitled to recover costs as a matter of right unless otherwise provided by statute. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1032(b).) A verified memorandum of costs is prima facie evidence that the costs, amount, and necessity of the items claimed are proper. The burden then shifts to the party seeking to tax costs to show that an item is not recoverable, was not reasonably necessary, or was unreasonable in amount. (See Nelson v. Anderson (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 111, 131.)

Court Reporter Cancellation Fee

The Court recognizes that an $850 cancellation fee is a significant expense and appreciates Plaintiff's concern that paying that amount for a service ultimately not utilized appears wasteful. Nevertheless, the relevant inquiry is not whether the charge could have been avoided in hindsight, but whether Defendants acted reasonably when arranging for the court reporter and whether the resulting expense was reasonably necessary to the conduct of the litigation. The cost statute permits recovery of fees for court reporters obtained for trial or proceedings when otherwise recoverable. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1033.5(a)(11).) The fact that the proceeding ultimately did not require the reporter does not, standing alone, establish that the expense was unreasonable or unnecessary when incurred.

Plaintiff has not demonstrated that Defendants acted unreasonably in arranging for court reporting services or that the cancellation fee resulted from conduct that renders the cost nonrecoverable. The Court does not find that a prevailing party forfeits recovery of a reasonable litigation expense merely because circumstances later changed and the service was cancelled.

Electronic Filing Fees

The Court also declines to tax the claimed electronic filing fees. Electronic filing expenses are recoverable costs. (Code Civ. Proc., § 1033.5(a)(14).) Plaintiff does not dispute that Defendants' e-filing provider is an approved electronic filing service provider. Rather, Plaintiff argues Defendants should have selected a less expensive alternative, namely self-service e-filing.

The Court is not persuaded that a prevailing party's choice among approved e-filing methods renders the resulting expense unreasonable or requires the Court to engage in post hoc cost comparison among available filing options. Plaintiff has not shown that the fees charged were excessive, improper, or outside the range of reasonable filing-related expenses. The cost statutes do not require a party to select the least expensive available service where the selected service is authorized and reasonably related to litigation activity.

Apportionment

The Court further declines to apportion the challenged costs. Apportionment is generally appropriate where costs are incurred for claims or parties as to which recovery is not authorized or where a particular expense cannot reasonably be attributed to recoverable litigation. Plaintiff has not established that the challenged costs relate to discrete nonrecoverable matters or that apportionment is required under the circumstances presented.

Accordingly, Plaintiff has not met its burden to show that the challenged costs are improper, unnecessary, or unreasonable.

The motion to strike or tax costs is DENIED.

Defendant to prepare the final proposed order, accompanied by the necessary Form EFS-020 within 7 days of the hearing .

Calendar line 6Case Name: 25CV459137Case No.: *Alexander Xue v. EMC Santana Row, LLCI. Background

On February 18, 2025, self-represented plaintiff Alexander Xue (“Plaintiff”) initiated this action against defendant EMC Santana Row, LLC (“Defendant”), asserting claims for violations of the Business and Professions Code and violation of the Civil Code.

According to the allegations of the complaint, Defendant owns EMC Seafood & Raw Bar (“the Restaurant”) that Plaintiff visited in December 2024. (Complaint, ¶¶ 5-6.) Plaintiff intended to have a drink and was presented with a cocktail menu that contained the prices of each drink. (Id. at ¶ 7.) Plaintiff found the prices to be reasonable, ordered, and thereafter paid his bill. (Id. at ¶¶ 9-10.) Once he received his receipt, Plaintiff noticed a “Surcharge Living Wage” in the amount of $1.08, or 3.48% of his $31.00 pre-tax subtotal. (Id. at ¶ 11.) Plaintiff was surprised by the undisclosed charge that was added without his consent or prior knowledge. (Id. at ¶¶ 12-13.)

On April 8, 2025, Defendant filed an answer to the complaint. On the same day, Plaintiff filed a demurrer to the answer. On September 10, 2025, the Court (Hon. Monahan) adopted its tentative ruling finding that no proof of service was filed and the demurrer was taken off calendar.

On April 14, 2026, Plaintiff filed an identical demurrer to the answer, currently before the Court. Defendant opposes the demurrer. For the reasons stated below, the demurrer is overruled.

II. Legal Standard

A plaintiff may demur to a defendant’s answer within 10 days of being served with the answer (Code Civ. Proc., § 430.40, subd. (b)) on three grounds: 1) failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense; 2) uncertainty; or 3) failure to state whether a contract alleged in the answer is written or oral. (Code Civ. Proc., § 430.20.)

The demurrer may be to the whole answer or to any one or more of the several defenses in the answer. (Code Civ. Proc., § 430.50, subd. (b).) The plaintiff may not, however, demur to part of a defense and, in order to determine the sufficiency of a defense, it must be considered as a whole. Each defense must be considered separately without regard to any other defense, and one defense does not become insufficient because it is inconsistent with any other parts of the answer. (South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal.App.2d 725, 733 (South Shore Land Co.).)

The critical inquiry when a plaintiff demurs to an answer is whether the answer raises a defense to plaintiff’s stated cause of action. (Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal.App.3d 873, 879-880.) Affirmative defenses presented in an answer must plead ultimate facts to the same extent as required in a complaint. (FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal.App.3d 367, 384.) Thus, for any “new matter” for which a defendant has the burden of proving at trial, the defendant must plead supporting facts. (California Academy of Sciences v. County of Fresno (1987) 192 Cal.App.3d 1436, 1442.) Affirmative defenses consisting of legal conclusions will not survive demurrer. (Westly v. Board of Administration (2003) 105 Cal.App.4th 1095, 1117.)

“The determination whether an answer states a defense is governed by the same principles which are applicable in determining if a complaint states a cause of action.” (South Shore Land Co., supra, 226 Cal.App.2d at p. 732.) “[T]he demurrer to the answer admits all issuable facts pleaded therein and eliminates all allegations of the complaint denied by the answer.” (Id. at p. 733.) Unlike a demurrer to the complaint, “the defect in question need not appear on the face of the answer” as “[t]he determination of the sufficiency of the answer requires an examination of the complaint because its adequacy is with reference to the complaint it purports to answer.” (Ibid.)

III. Analysis

Plaintiff’s memorandum of points and authorities in support of his demurrer consists of a single page with five case law quotes and various citations. The demurrer is devoid of any argument whatsoever. It appears from the quotes cited by Plaintiff that he attempts to argue that the affirmative defenses are conclusory and alleged with insufficient facts. (See Demurrer, ¶¶ 3-4.) However, the “absence of cogent legal argument . . . allows this court to treat the contention as waived.” (Public Employment Relations Bd. v. Bellflower Unified School Dist. (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 927, 939; Perry v. City of San Diego (2021) 65 Cal.App.5th 172, 188, fn. 8 [“It is not this court’s role to connect the dots.”].) The Court declines to go through each of Defendant’s affirmative defenses on Plaintiff’s behalf. (See Harding v. Collazo (1986) 177 Cal.App.3d 1044, 1055-1056 [a litigant appearing in propria persona is not entitled to special treatment].)

Accordingly, the demurrer to Defendant’s answer is OVERRULED.

Calendar Line 8Case Name: *Mengmei Xu v. ERY Tenant LLCCase No.: 26-CV-486105

Motion to Quash Service of Summons and Complaint for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction or, Alternatively, to Dismiss for Forum Non Conveniens by Defendant ERY Tenant LLC

Factual and Procedural Background

This is a fraud action brought by plaintiff Mengmei Xu (“Plaintiff”) against defendant ERY Tenant LLC (“ERY”).¹

According to the complaint, in September 2013, Plaintiff, while residing in China, invested $500,000 into defendant ERY’s real estate in New York City. (Complaint at ¶ 6.) Plaintiff was led to believe that the investment had an expected exit timeframe of approximately 3.5 years, which was a material inducement for her decision to invest. (Id. at ¶ 8.)

Plaintiff was also required to execute a Subscription Agreement in connection with the investment. (Complaint at ¶ 9.) The Subscription Agreement referenced a separate Limited Liability Company Agreement (“LLC Agreement”), which purportedly governed material investor rights, including exit rights and distributions. (Id. at ¶ 10.) The LLC Agreement however was not provided to Plaintiff in a manner reasonably sufficient to permit review, understanding, or informed assent, either before or after she invested, nor was it summarized or explained. (Id. at ¶ 11.)

In October 2023, Plaintiff raised concerns regarding the lack of liquidity and requested an exit or refund of the investment. (Complaint at ¶ 16.) In response, defendant ERY stated: (1) whether and when Plaintiff could exit the investment was entirely within ERY’s discretion; and (2) no fixed or expected 3.5 year exit right existed for investors. (Id. at ¶ 17.) This position directly contradicted the representations and understandings made to Plaintiff at the time of the investment. (Id. at ¶ 18.) At this point, Plaintiff realized that ERY had misrepresented and concealed material facts regarding the project’s exit structure and governance. (Id. at ¶ 21.)

On February 4, 2026, Plaintiff filed the operative complaint against defendant ERY alleging causes of action for: (1) fraud/fraudulent inducement; (2) fraud by omission; (3) negligent misrepresentation; (4) declaratory relief; and (5) rescission and restitution.

On March 16, 2026, defendant ERY filed the motion presently before the court, a motion to quash service of summons and complaint for lack of personal jurisdiction. In the alternative, ERY moves to dismiss the action for forum non conveniens. Plaintiff filed written opposition. ERY filed reply papers.

Motion to Quash Service of Summons and Complaint

Defendant ERY moves to quash service of summons and complaint for lack of personal jurisdiction as it is not subject to general jurisdiction or specific jurisdiction in the state of California.

Plaintiff's Burden

“When a defendant challenges jurisdiction through a motion to quash, the plaintiff bears the burden to demonstrate facts, as to each nonresident defendant, justifying the exercise of jurisdiction by a preponderance of evidence. [Citation.] The plaintiff must provide specific evidentiary facts, through affidavits and other authenticated documents, sufficient to allow the court to independently conclude whether jurisdiction is appropriate. [Citation.] The plaintiff cannot rely on allegations in an unverified complaint or vague and conclusory assertions of ultimate facts. [Citation.]” (Strasner v. Touchstone Wireless Repair & Logistics, LP (2016) 5 Cal.App.5th 215, 221-222 (Strasner).)

General Principles of Personal Jurisdiction

“California’s long-arm statute permits a court to exercise personal jurisdiction on any basis consistent with state or federal constitutional principles. [Citations.] The primary focus of the personal jurisdiction inquiry is the relationship of the defendant to the forum state. [Citation.] The ‘constitutional touchstone’ of this inquiry is whether the defendant ‘purposefully established “minimum contacts” in the forum State.’ [Citation.]” (Rivelli v. Hemm (2021) 67 Cal.App.5th 380, 391 (Rivelli).)

“ ‘Minimum contacts exist where the defendant’s conduct in the forum state is such that he should reasonably anticipate being subject to suit there, and it is reasonable and fair to force him to do so.’ [Citations.] To comport with constitutional requirements of due process, a California court may assert jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant (who has not consented to suit in the forum) only if the defendant’s minimum contacts with the forum state are ‘such that the maintenance of the suit “does not offend the traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.” ’ [Citations.] The minimum contacts test ensures ‘a defendant will not be haled into a jurisdiction solely as a result of “random,” “fortuitous,” or “attenuated” contacts’ [citation] but only ‘where the contacts proximately result from actions by the defendant himself that create a “substantial connection” with the forum state.’ [Citation.]” (Rivelli, supra, 67 Cal.App.5th at pp. 391-392.)

The court must determine if defendant ERY has sufficient contacts with California to establish general (or “all-purpose”) jurisdiction or specific (or “case-linked”) jurisdiction.

General Jurisdiction

“The standard for general jurisdiction is considerably more stringent than that for specific jurisdiction. [Citation.] A defendant is subject to general jurisdiction when it has substantial, continuous, and systematic contacts in the forum state, i.e., its contacts with the forum are so wide-ranging that they take the place of a physical presence in the state. [Citations.] In assessing a defendant’s contacts with the forum for purposes of general jurisdiction, we look at the contacts as they existed from the time the alleged conduct occurred to the time of service of summons. [Citation.] For a corporation, its domicile, place of incorporation, and principal place of business within a state constitute the paradigm bases for establishing general jurisdiction. [Citation.] A defendant corporation’s substantial sales in a state are insufficient to establish general jurisdiction, as the general jurisdiction analysis turns on the nature of the defendant's continuous corporate operations within a state. [Citation.]" (Strasner, supra, 5 Cal.App.5th at pp. 222-223.)

" 'To determine if a defendant's activities qualify as "continuous and systematic" or "substantial" we examine all of the defendant's activities that impact the state, including whether the defendant makes sales, solicits or engages in business, serves the state's markets, designates an agent for service of process, holds a license, has employees, or is incorporated there. [Citations.]' " (Elkman v. National States Ins. Co. (2009) 173 Cal.App.4th 1305, 1316.)

In opposition, Plaintiff does not set forth arguments demonstrating that general jurisdiction is applicable in this action. Thus, the court examines whether defendant ERY has sufficient contacts with California to establish specific jurisdiction.

Specific Jurisdiction

"Case-linked jurisdiction hinges on the ' "relationship among the defendant, the forum, and the litigation." ' [Citations.] It requires ' "an affiliation between the forum and the underlying controversy, principally, [an] activity or an occurrence that takes place in the forum State and is therefore subject to the State's regulation." ' [Citation.] Consistent with the constraints of due process, 'the defendant's suit-related conduct must create a substantial connection with the forum State.' [Citation.]" (Rivelli, supra, 67 Cal.App.5th at p. 392.)

"As expressed by the California Supreme Court, a court may exercise case-linked jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant if three requirements are met. First, the defendant must have purposefully availed himself of the privilege of conducting activities in this state, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of California's law. Second, the claim or controversy must relate to or arise out of the defendant's forum-related contacts. Third, the exercise of jurisdiction must be fair and reasonable and should not offend notions of fair play and substantial justice. [Citations.]" (Rivelli, supra, 67 Cal.App.5th at p. 392.)

As stated above, " 'the plaintiff has the initial burden of demonstrating facts justifying the exercise of jurisdiction. [Citation.] Once facts showing minimum contacts with the forum state are established, however, it becomes the defendant's burden to demonstrate that the exercise of jurisdiction would be unreasonable. [Citation.]' [Citation.]" (Stone v. Tex (1999) 76 Cal.App.4th 1043, 1048.)

"The case-linked jurisdictional analysis is intensely fact-specific. [Citation.] Indeed, the test for personal jurisdiction ' "is not susceptible of mechanical application; rather, the facts of each case must be weighed to determine whether the requisite 'affiliating circumstances' are present." ' [Citations.]" (Rivelli, supra, 67 Cal.App.5th at pp. 392-393.)

Purposeful Availment

"An out-of-state defendant purposefully avails itself of a forum state's benefits if the defendant (1) purposefully directs its activities at the forum state's residents, (2) purposefully derives a benefit from its activities in the forum state, or (3) purposefully invokes the privileges and protections of the forum state's laws by (a) purposefully engaging in 'significant activities' within the forum state or (b) purposefully creating 'continuing [contractual] obligations' between itself and the residents of the forum state. [Citations.] Purposeful availment can occur from afar; the out-of-state defendant's physical presence in the forum state is not required. [Citation.]" (Jacqueline B. v. Rawls Law Group, P.C. (2021) 68 Cal.App.5th 243, 253 (Jacqueline B.)).

"As the name and definition of purposeful availment make plain, an out-of-state defendant's conduct toward the forum State or its residents is relevant to the jurisdictional analysis only if that conduct is purposeful, deliberate, and intentional. [Citations.] An out-of-state defendant's contact with a forum state that is 'random' 'fortuitous' or 'attenuated' is not enough. [Citations.] This is why the mere fact that the out-of-state defendant's conduct has some 'effect' on a California resident is not enough, by itself, to constitute purposeful availment [citations]; to count, that effect must be intended [citations]." (Jacqueline B., supra, 68 Cal.App.5th at p. 254.)

As a preliminary matter, the complaint alleges the court has personal jurisdiction over defendant ERY as the company purposefully directed investment solicitation and related conduct toward California residents, including Plaintiff, and Plaintiff's claims arise from that conduct. (Complaint at ¶ 4.) But, as stated above, unverified allegations of the complaint are not enough to overcome a motion to quash as the court must consider admissible evidence submitted by Plaintiff in the opposition. The evidence here consists of Plaintiff's declaration, signed under penalty of perjury, where she contends she began living in California in 2016 and became a lawful permanent resident of the state in 2019. (Plaintiff's Decl. at ¶ 7.) Plaintiff asserts defendant ERY purposefully directed conduct toward California by: (1) in December 2019, issuing an address and banking confirmation form to Plaintiff for future distributions; (2) periodically sending Schedule K-1 and executed capital contribution directly to Plaintiff after she established her permanent residence in California; and (3) responding to a letter sent by Plaintiff on or about October 2, 2023. (Id. at ¶¶ 8-10.)

Thus, Plaintiff argues her communications with defendant ERY after she became a lawful permanent resident in California, are sufficient to satisfy her burden on the element of purposeful availment. While not cited specifically in the opposition, Plaintiff appears to be relying on the so-called "effects test" pursuant to Calder v. Jones (1984) 465 U.S. 783 (Calder).

In Calder, a California plaintiff sued a Florida reporter and editor for libel based on an article the defendants wrote and edited in Florida for publication in the National Enquirer, a national newspaper that included a California circulation of roughly 600,000. (Calder, supra, 571 U.S. at pp. 784-786.) The United States Supreme Court examined the contacts the defendants had created with California by writing the article and found them to be sufficient to constitute minimum contacts. (Ibid.) Specifically, the defendants had relied on phone calls with sources in California for the information in the article, which focused on the plaintiff's activities in California, and they had caused reputational injury to the plaintiff, the brunt of which was suffered in California. (Ibid.) Jurisdiction over the defendants in California was proper, the court held, "because of their intentional conduct in Florida calculated to cause injury to [plaintiff] in California." (Id. at p. 791.)

Although Calder involved a libel claim, courts have applied the effects test to other intentional torts, including business torts. (See IMO Industries, Inc. v. Kiekert AG (3d Cir. 1998) 155 F.3d 254, 259-260 [courts must consider Calder in intentional tort cases]; Far West Capital, Inc. v. Towne (10th Cir. 1995) 46 F.3d 1071, 1077 [“Courts have also applied Calder to business torts”].)

Calder however does not stand for the proposition that any communications with a plaintiff located in the forum state necessarily create sufficient minimum contacts. In fact, the United States Supreme Court has explained that Calder “made clear that mere injury to a forum resident is not a sufficient connection to the forum.” (Walden v. Fiore (2014) 571 U.S. 277, 290.) “Regardless of where a plaintiff lives or works, an injury is jurisdictionally relevant only insofar as it shows that defendant has formed a contact with the forum State. The proper question is not where the plaintiff experienced a particular injury or effect but whether the defendant’s conduct connects him to the forum in a meaningful way.” (Ibid.) The “relationship must arise out of the contacts that the ‘defendant himself’ creates with the forum State.” (Id. at p. 284.)

The California Supreme Court has described the Calder “effects test” as “governing whether a defendant in an intentional tort action has purposefully availed himself of the forum benefits.” (Zehia v. Super. Ct. (2020) 45 Cal.App.5th 543, 553, citing Pavlovich v. Super. Ct. (2002) 29 Cal.4th 262, 268 (Pavlovich).) That inquiry focuses on the defendant’s intentionality and is satisfied when the defendant “purposefully and voluntarily directs his activities toward the forum so that he should expect, by virtue of the benefit he receives, to be subject to the court’s jurisdiction based on his contacts with the forum.” (Pavlovich, supra, at p. 269.)

In summary, “personal jurisdiction may be exercised over a defendant who has caused an effect in the forum state by an act or omission occurring elsewhere. [Citations.] But there must be evidence the nonresident defendant intentionally targeted his or her conduct at the forum state and not just at a plaintiff who lives in that state. [Citations.]” (Swenberg v. dmarcian, Inc. (2021) 68 Cal.App.5th 280, 292; see David L. v. Super. Ct. (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 359, 374 [“Simply directing conduct at plaintiff knowing that she has significant California connections does not satisfy the minimum contacts inquiry.”].)

Here, according to the evidence submitted in opposition, defendant ERY did not purposefully direct its activities toward California or receive any benefit from California through its correspondence with Plaintiff. Stated another way, there is no evidence that ERY intentionally targeted its conduct in California. Instead, evidence submitted in the moving papers affirmatively shows that ERY does not conduct business, maintain offices, own or lease property, appoint agents for service of process, hold bank accounts, or file taxes in California. (See Rosen Decl. at ¶ 8.) In fact, the only connection with California was ERY’s correspondence directed solely to Plaintiff which, based on the aforementioned cases, is not enough to satisfy the minimum contacts inquiry. (See also ParaFi Digital Opportunities LP v. Egorov (2025) 108 Cal.App.5th 124, 140 [the use of mails, telephone, or other international communications simply do not qualify as purposeful activity invoking the benefits and protections of the forum state].)

Nor is the court persuaded by the legal authorities cited in opposition in support of the purposeful availment element. Plaintiff relies primarily on the United States Supreme Court decision in Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 U.S. 462 (Burger King) where a dispute arose out of a franchise agreement between the franchisor Burger King, located in Florida, and the franchisee located in Michigan. Even though the defendant franchisee never physically entered the forum state, the Supreme Court determined that the defendant had purposefully directed its economic activities toward the forum state and created an ongoing contractual relationship between himself and the Florida plaintiff. (Burger King, supra, at p. 476.)

Burger King however is distinguishable as the Supreme Court was addressing personal jurisdiction in the context of interstate contractual relations rather than fraud which is the principal issue in this action. Also, the dispute grew out of a contract that had a “substantial connection” with the forum state. (Burger King, supra, 471 U.S. at p. 475.) For example, the defendant’s activities in Burger King included deliberately reaching out to negotiate the franchise agreement with the Florida franchisor, a continuous course of mail and telephone contacts with Burger King in Florida, paying monthly franchise fees to Burger King in Florida, and allegedly engaging in conduct causing foreseeable injuries to the corporation in Florida. Furthermore, the Supreme Court found it significant that defendant knew he was forming a business relationship with plaintiff in the forum state and that his operations would be supervised by headquarters in that state. And, by affiliating with Burger King, defendant took advantage of significant benefits that would flow from plaintiff’s established name and organization. By contrast, the evidence submitted in opposition does not establish that defendant ERY had a “substantial connection” with California in this case.

Plaintiff’s reliance on Snowney v. Harrah’s Entertainment, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal.4th 1054 (Snowney) is also misplaced. There, a California resident brought a class action against a group of Nevada hotels based on the conduct of the hotels in failing to provide notice of an energy surcharge imposed on hotel guests. (Snowney, supra, at pp. 1059-1060.) Although the hotels did not conduct business in California and had no bank accounts or employees in the state, they advertised heavily in California and received a significant portion of their business from California residents. (Id. at p. 1059.) The California Supreme Court held both that (1) the conduct of the hotels established that the hotels purposefully and voluntarily directed their activities toward California such that they should expect to be subject to California courts’ jurisdiction based on their contacts with the forum, and (2) the injury suffered by the plaintiff “relates directly to the content of defendants’ advertising in California.” (Id. at pp. 1067, 1070.) Unlike Snowney, there is no evidence proffered in opposition demonstrating that defendant ERY advertised heavily in California or received a significant portion of their business from California residents.

Therefore, the court finds that Plaintiff has not carried her burden in establishing that defendant ERY purposefully availed itself of the benefits and protections of California law. Having failed to satisfy this element, the court declines to consider whether the causes of action relate to or arise out of the defendant’s forum-related contacts and whether the exercise of jurisdiction would be fair and reasonable so as not to offend notions of fair play and substantial justice.

Request to Continue the Motion to Quash to Conduct Jurisdictional Discovery

If the court is inclined to grant the motion, Plaintiff requests a continuance of the motion to conduct jurisdictional discovery.

A plaintiff attempting to assert jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant is entitled to an opportunity to conduct discovery of the jurisdictional facts necessary to sustain its burden of proof. (Hardell v. Vanzyl (2024) 102 Cal.App.5th 960, 974-975.) The court has “discretion to continue the hearing on a motion to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff to conduct discovery on jurisdictional issues.” (HealthMarkets, Inc. v. Super. Ct. (2009) 171 Cal.App.4th 1160, 1173.) But, “[i]n order to prevail on a motion for continuance for jurisdictional discovery, the plaintiff should demonstrate that discovery is likely to lead to the production of evidence of facts establishing jurisdiction.” (In re Automobile Antitrust Cases I & II (2005) 135 Cal.App.4th 100, 127.)

In opposition, Plaintiff seeks an opportunity to conduct jurisdictional discovery for the purpose of obtaining the following from defendant ERY: (1) the subscription package; (2) transmission records; (3) electronic version flow logs; (4) communications with Wailian Visa; and (5) internal records concerning Jeff T. Blau’s 2023 response to Plaintiff’s redemption request. (See OPP at p. 16:20-25; Plaintiff’s Decl. at ¶¶ 3, 5, 9.) But, as stated above, Plaintiff fails to submit evidence showing that ERY purposefully availed itself of the benefits and protections of California law. Plaintiff’s request to conduct jurisdictional discovery fails as it does not address how the requested information and documents will satisfy this element or lead to the production of evidence establishing personal jurisdiction over defendant ERY for purposes of this motion.

Accordingly, the request to conduct jurisdictional discovery is DENIED.

Leave to Amend

Finally, if the court is inclined to grant the motion, Plaintiff requests leave to amend the complaint to add allegations of defendant ERY’s contacts with California and post-investment conduct. As a threshold matter, the court is not aware of any legal authority that allows a plaintiff an opportunity for leave to amend in response to a motion to quash. Nor does leave to amend seem proper as the court, at this juncture, is not concerned with whether Plaintiff has stated a valid cause of action but only whether evidentiary facts exist for the exercise of personal jurisdiction over defendant ERY. Plaintiff has not carried her burden in producing such evidence for reasons explained above and offering her an opportunity for leave to amend does nothing to resolve the issue of personal jurisdiction in this action.

Therefore, the request for leave to amend is DENIED.

Consequently, the motion to quash service of summons and complaint for lack of personal jurisdiction is GRANTED. Having granted the motion to quash, the court declines to address the alternative motion to dismiss for forum non conveniens.

Disposition

The motion to quash service of summons and complaint for lack of personal jurisdiction is GRANTED.

The court will prepare the Order.
