

Consequently, there is sufficient evidence to support Petitioner's contention that she complied with the rules pertaining to requesting a hearing to contest the tentative ruling, Respondent failed to attend the hearing and orders were made following the hearing. There is no good cause to set aside the order.

As to Respondent's Motion to enforce pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 664.6, before a court may enter judgment, the parties must reach a mutual accord on all material terms of the settlement. (Weddington Productions, Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 793, 797.) If there is no meeting of the minds on the material terms, no contract formation has occurred, and there is no settlement agreement to enforce under. (Ibid.) Here, the proposed judgment does include additional language that was not included in the minute order, which Petitioner is objecting to. For example, the language added includes references to encumbrances associated with the properties at issue as well as a reference to Internal Revenue Code section 1041.
