INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff Jose Pena ("Plaintiff") moves for an award of attorneys' fees consisting of a "lodestar" amount of $56,443.50, a lodestar enhancement of 1.5 in the amount of $28,221.75, and $17,813.43 in costs and expenses.

Defendant American Honda Motor Co. ("Defendant")
filed an opposition brief on June 12, 2026.

Plaintiff filed a reply brief on June 18, 2026.

II.

DISCUSSION

Attorneys'

Fees

Plaintiff submits the declaration of Roger Kirnos, wherein he attests to the qualifications of the attorneys and paralegals who performed 123.9 hours of work on this matter. The declaration sets forth the reasonableness of the attorneys' hourly rates, which range from $295-$625, as well as that of the paralegal's hourly rate of $145. Plaintiff also argues that a lodestar multiplier of 1.5 is appropriate due to the contingent nature of the case.

In opposition, Defendant argues that Plaintiff's counsel should not recover more than $28,582 and that the amount billed reflects "bloated hours worked by 17 different timekeepers.) Defendant argues that "[t]o the extent any original work was performed, counsel's overstaffing must inevitably have resulted in duplicative billing and excessive amounts of time on rote tasks." (Opp., p. 5.) Defendant also argues that the rates billed by Plaintiff's counsel are excessive and proposes a blended hourly rate of $350 for all attorneys and staff.

In the Court's experience, the hourly rates charged by Plaintiff's counsel are reasonable in comparison to other lemon law attorneys who prosecute cases on a contingency basis. The amount of hours billed for the work is also reasonable. Despite pointing out the number of timekeepers staffed on the matter, Defendant does not identify any billing entries that demonstrate overstaffing or inefficiency. Defendant points to the amount of time spent on deposition preparation. However, the fact that Defendant did not conduct lengthy depositions is not evidence that the time spent preparing for them was excessive. Furthermore, Defendant's complaints of improper block-billing are unfounded because the entries are sufficiently descriptive. Last, Defendant's claims that Plaintiff's counsel improperly billed for clerical work is unsupported. Therefore, the Court declines to make any reductions to the lodestar.

With respect to Plaintiff's request for a lodestar multiplier, the Court notes as an initial matter that Plaintiff requests a 1.5 lodestar enhancement in the beginning of its moving papers and three different multipliers (1.2, 1.3, and 1.5) in three consecutive sentences towards the end. (Compare Motion, p. 2 with p. 13). Plaintiff argues that a lodestar is appropriate because this case involved risk on three different levels. Plaintiff argues that counsel risked not being paid at all and claims that Plaintiff's counsel "risked the amount of hours" as well as their hourly rates. This attempt to exaggerate Plaintiff's counsel's risk exposure is unpersuasive because all three "levels" involves the same risk present in contingency matters: not being paid. Additionally, there is nothing in this case that is out of the ordinary, which is evidenced by Plaintiff's counsel's admitted ability to make extensive use of templates.

B.

Costs

Defendant did not challenge the costs claimed by Plaintiff. Therefore, the motion is granted with respect to costs.

III.

CONCLUSION

Plaintiff's motion is GRANTED in part and Plaintiff's counsel is awarded fees and costs in the amount of $74,256.93, consisting of $56,443.50 in fees and $17,813.43 in costs.
