CASE NAME: Brahms v. Drexler, et al.

CASE NO.: 25SMCV02892

MOTION: Motion

to Compel Compliance/Production

HEARING DATE: 7/15/2026

Legal

Standard

If a party permits inspection, copying, testing, or sampling of documents in response to a request for production of documents, but thereafter fails to permit the inspection, copying, testing, or sampling in accordance with that party's statement of compliance, the demanding party may move for an order compelling compliance. (CCP § 2031.320(a).) The court "shall" impose a monetary sanction against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully makes or opposes a motion to compel compliance with a demand, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust. (CCP § 2031.320(b).)

ANALYSIS

Plaintiff Eric Brahms moves for an order compelling Defendant Ryan Drexler to comply with his February 4, 2026, statements of compliance as to supplemental responses to Brahms's requests for production of documents, by producing all responsive documents to those requests. Plaintiff also requests sanctions in the amount of $7,412.50 against Defendant and his counsel of record.

Plaintiff demonstrates that Defendant agreed to produce documents responsive to Brahms's first set of requests for production. On February 4, 2026, Drexler served his Supplemental Responses to Production, wherein he agreed to comply with many of the Requests, but conditioned every agreement on the execution of a stipulated protective order. (Gless Decl., ¶ 4, Ex. B.) After extensive meet and confer efforts, and delays caused by Defendant's counsel, on May 21, 2026, Defendant's counsel signed the agreed-to protective order, and Plaintiff filed the stipulated protective order with the Court. (Molen Decl., ¶ 16, Ex. Q.) The Court entered the protective order on May 26, 2026. (Id.) According to the parties' agreement, the parties would mutually produce documents 15 days thereafter. (Id., ¶ 15, Ex. P.) Consistent with the parties' agreement, Brahms served his document production on June 10, 2026. (Id. ¶ 19.) However, Drexler failed to produce any documents. (Id.; Gless Decl., ¶ 5.)

Accordingly, the motion is GRANTED. Defendant must produce all responsive documents to Plaintiff's counsel of record within five days. Sanctions are imposed in the reduced total amount of $3,185.00 against Defendant and Defendant's counsel of record, jointly and severally. Sanctions are to be paid to Plaintiff's counsel of record within 30 days.
