24VECV05003 Cuevas v McDonalds

This is an abuse of the ex parte process. This is not an emergency. Instead of filing a timely motion to continue, the parties seek to jump ahead of 50 or more hearings that were timely noticed. The court will not hear this ex parte. File a motion to compel, ask for it to be special set or for a short continuance to have the motion heard. Also, the parties should not have scheduled a mediation after the trial date. By doing so, the parties are attempting to control the court's calendar. The court will not reward bad behavior.
