

		order was made; and (4) what new or different facts, circumstances or law are claimed to be shown. (Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a).) A party seeking reconsideration also must provide a satisfactory explanation for the failure to produce the evidence at an earlier time. (New York Times Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal.App.4th 206, 213.) A motion for reconsideration must be filed within 10 days of service on him of notice of entry of the order in question. (Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a).) The 10-day deadline for seeking reconsideration is extended under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 for service by mail, fax, electronic service or overnight delivery, which applies “in the absence of a specific exception provided for by this section or other statute or rule of court.” (Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), (c), (e).) Plaintiff’s motion is titled, “NOTICE OF MOTION RECONSIDERATION TO PLAINTIFF VEXATIOUS LITIGANT, POS WAS UNTIMELY, WRONG CASE NUMBER, WRONG HEARING DATE OF 1/22/2025, SERVICE WAS VOID RICKIE HULSEY’S DECLARATION.” However, Plaintiff’s notice of motion states that Plaintiff seeks “an order vacating as void the Court’s order declaring Plaintiff a vexatious litigant and imposing a prefiling order.” (Motion at p. 1.) Thus, it is not even clear that Plaintiff seeks reconsideration. Indeed, Plaintiff’s motion does not even reference Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, the statute governing motions for reconsideration. Insofar as it is a motion to vacate to set aside the January 22, 2026, order declaring Plaintiff a vexatious litigant, it is duplicative of the motion filed on January 29, 2026, and is denied for the same reasons that motion was denied. Insofar as it is a motion for reconsideration, Plaintiff provides no basis for reconsideration of the January 22, 2026, order. Plaintiff provides no new or different facts, circumstances, or law than those before the court at the time of the original ruling. The Court has already addressed Plaintiff’s challenges to that January 22, 2026, order and ruled that those challenges lack merit. The motion is denied. Clerk to give notice.
