

because Defendant provides no invoices, receipts, or documentation of any kind, or sworn attestation to support these charges. Merely alleging in the motion that the costs are neither necessary nor reasonable without a supporting declaration does not meet the burden of showing that the costs are unnecessary. (See County of Kern v. Ginn (1983) 146 Cal.App.3d 1107, 1113-1114.) Only after the items are properly objected to, does the burden of proof shift to the party claiming them as costs. (Ladas v. California State Auto. Assn., supra, 19 Cal.App.4th at 774.) Plaintiff has not met his initial burden to shift the burden onto Defendant.
