

The reasonable hourly rate is that prevailing in the community for similar work. (PLCM Group v. Drexler (2000) 22 Cal.4th 1084, 1095.) The rate is measured in the market place, and reflects several factors: the level of skill necessary, time limitations, the amount to be obtained in the litigation, the attorney's reputation, and the undesirability of the case. (Shaffer v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal.App.4th 993, 1002.)

Plaintiff's counsel claims an hourly rate of $460 for attorney Kimberly Flores, $350 for attorney Yao Vang, and $245 for paralegal Tim Kolb.

The Court finds the claimed hourly rates for the attorneys, while high for the local area, are within the range of rates charged in the local Merced community for the same or similar work. However, the claimed paralegal hourly rate is not representative of the rates charged in the local community. Accordingly, the Court finds it reasonable to set the hourly rate of paralegal Kolb at $150 /hour.

A trial court may not rubberstamp a request for attorney fees, and must determine the number of hours reasonably expended. (Donahue v. Donahue (2010) 182 Cal.App.4th 259, 271.)

After a substantial review of the entire record and the documents offered in support of Plaintiff's motion, the court finds the time billed is excessive and finds it reasonable to reduce the hours billed. The court finds it reasonable to reduce the total time for attorney Flores by 1.6 hours, attorney Vang by 13.8 hours, and paralegal Kolb by 2.8 hours.

This results in a lodestar of $20,444. This represents the reasonable total billed time for attorney Flores of 15.9 hours at $460 an hour, for attorney Vang of 31.9 hours at $350 an hour, and paralegal Kolb at 13.1 hours at $150 an hour.

Accordingly, the Court awards attorney fees in favor of Plaintiff in the amount of $20,444.

Attorney fees are to be paid within thirty (30) days of this Court's order.
