09/17/2026 in Department J6

Motion to Quash Disposition Subpoena Production of Documents and Things to Acorn Law PC

Respondents have failed to establish the preliminary facts necessary to support the attorney-client privilege.

Further, the general “testamentary exception” to the attorney-client privilege, which applies in postdeath litigation among a decedent's heirs, beneficiaries or other interested persons, applies here. (Ev.C. §§ 957, 959-961).

Respondents have not established that the requested documents fall under the category of attorney work product.

The court intends to deny the Motion to Quash the Deposition Subpeona, Production of Documents and Things to Acorn Law PC.
