Case Name: Hecker v. Mathew Enterprise, Inc.

Case No.: 22CV405334

This is a putative class and Private Attorneys General Act (“PAGA”) action. Plaintiff Karen Hecker alleges defendant Mathew Enterprise, Inc. committed various wage and hour violations.

Before the Court is Plaintiff’s motion for preliminary approval of settlement, which is unopposed. As discussed below, the Court GRANTS the motion.

V. BACKGROUND

According to the allegations of the operative first amended complaint (“FAC”), Defendant failed to: pay all wages; provide compliant meal periods or compensation in lieu thereof; provide compliant rest periods or compensation in lieu thereof; timely pay wages; furnish accurate wage statements; pay wages upon termination; and reimburse necessary business expenses. (FAC, ¶¶ 5, 14-23.)

Based on the foregoing, Plaintiff initiated this action on October 25, 2022, with the filing of the Complaint. On February 1, 2023, she filed the operative FAC, which asserts the following causes of action: (1) failure to pay minimum wages; (2) failure to pay overtime wages; (3) failure to provide meal periods; (4) failure to permit rest breaks; (5) failure to reimburse business expenses; (6) failure to provide accurate itemized wage statements; (7) failure to pay wages timely during employment; (8) failure to pay all wages due upon separation of employment; (9) violation of Business and Professions Code §§ 17200, et seq.; and (10) enforcement of Labor Code § 2698, et seq. (PAGA).

Plaintiff now seeks an order preliminary: granting approval of the Class Action and PAGA Settlement Agreement and Class Notice (the “Settlement”); conditionally certifying the proposed Class for settlement purposes; appointing Plaintiff as the Class representative; appointing Aegis Law Firm as Class Counsel; appointing ILYM Group, Inc. (“ILYM”) as the Settlement administrator and authorizing the Class notice; and setting a final approval hearing.

VI. LEGAL STANDARDS FOR SETTLEMENT APPROVAL

A. Class Action

Generally, “questions whether a [class action] settlement was fair and reasonable, whether notice to the class was adequate, whether certification of the class was proper, and whether the attorney fee award was proper are matters addressed to the trial court’s broad discretion.” (Wershba v. Apple Computer, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal.App.4th 224, 234–235 (Wershba), disapproved of on other grounds by Hernandez v. Restoration Hardware, Inc. (2018) 4 Cal.5th 260.)

In determining whether a class settlement is fair, adequate and reasonable, the trial court should consider relevant factors, such as the strength of plaintiffs’ case, the risk, expense, complexity and likely duration of further litigation, the risk of maintaining class action status through trial, the amount offered in settlement, the extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceedings, the experience and views of counsel, the presence of a governmental participant, and the reaction of the class members to the proposed settlement.

(Wershba, supra, 91 Cal.App.4th at pp. 244–245, internal citations and quotations omitted.)

In general, the most important factor is the strength of the plaintiffs’ case on the merits, balanced against the amount offered in settlement. (See Kullar v. Foot Locker Retail, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 116, 130 (Kullar).) But the trial court is free to engage in a balancing and weighing of relevant factors, depending on the circumstances of each case. (Wershba, supra, 91 Cal.App.4th at p. 245.) The trial court must examine the “proposed settlement agreement to the extent necessary to reach a reasoned judgment that the agreement is not the product of fraud or overreaching by, or collusion between, the negotiating parties, and that the settlement, taken as a whole, is fair, reasonable and adequate to all concerned.” (Ibid., citation and internal quotation marks omitted.) The trial court also must independently confirm that “the consideration being received for the release of the class members’ claims is reasonable in light of the strengths and weaknesses of the claims and the risks of the particular litigation.” (Kullar, supra, 168 Cal.App.4th at p. 129.) Of course, before performing its analysis the trial court must be “provided with basic information about the nature and magnitude of the claims in question and the basis for concluding that the consideration being paid for the release of those claims represents a reasonable compromise.” (Id. at pp. 130, 133.)

B. PAGA

Labor Code section 2699, subdivision (l)(2) provides that “[t]he superior court shall review and approve any settlement of any civil action filed pursuant to” PAGA. The court’s review “ensur[es] that any negotiated resolution is fair to those affected.” (Williams v. Superior Court (2017) 3 Cal.5th 531, 549.) Seventy-five percent of any penalties recovered under PAGA go to the Labor and Workforce Development Agency (LWDA), leaving the remaining twenty-five percent for the aggrieved employees. (Iskanian v. CLS Transportation Los Angeles, LLC (2014) 59 Cal.4th 348, 380, overruled on other grounds by Viking River Cruises, Inc. v. Moriana (2022) 596 U.S. 639, 2022 U.S. LEXIS 2940.)

Similar to its review of class action settlements, the Court must “determine independently whether a PAGA settlement is fair and reasonable,” to protect “the interests of the public and the LWDA in the enforcement of state labor laws.” (Moniz v. Adecco USA, Inc. (2021) 72 Cal.App.5th 56, 76–77.) It must make this assessment “in view of PAGA’s purposes to remediate present labor law violations, deter future ones, and to maximize enforcement of state labor laws.” (Id. at p. 77; see also Haralson v. U.S. Aviation Servs. Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2019) 383 F. Supp. 3d 959, 971 [“when a PAGA claim is settled, the relief provided for under the PAGA [should] be genuine and meaningful, consistent with the underlying purpose of the statute to benefit the public”], quoting LWDA guidance discussed in O’Connor v. Uber Technologies, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 2016) 201 F.Supp.3d 1110 (O’Connor).)

The settlement must be reasonable in light of the potential verdict value. (See O’Connor, supra, 201 F.Supp.3d at p. 1135 [rejecting settlement of less than one percent of the potential verdict].) But a permissible settlement may be substantially discounted, given that courts often exercise their discretion to award PAGA penalties below the statutory maximum even where a claim succeeds at trial. (See Viceral v. Mistras Group, Inc. (N.D. Cal., Oct. 11, 2016, No. 15-CV-02198-EMC) 2016 WL 5907869, at *8–9.)

VII. SETTLEMENT PROCESS

Plaintiff initiated this action on October 25, 2022, and sent written notice to the Labor & Workforce Development Agency (“LWDA”) on the same day. On February 1, 2023, Plaintiff filed the operative FAC. The parties conducted formal discovery and Defendant produced documents and information including Plaintiff’s personnel files, policy documents, the Class members’ contact information, Class members’ timekeeping and pay records.

On October 15, 2025, the parties attended a mediation session with Eve Wagner, a respected mediator. After a day of negotiations, the Parties agreed to a settlement amount and executed a Memorandum of Understanding regarding the material terms of agreement. The parties spent the following few weeks negotiating the terms of the Settlement, which was finalized in October 2025. The negotiations were adversarial, conducted at arm’s length, and tempered by the efforts of both sides to serve interests of their clients. On May 12, 2026, Plaintiff submitted the Settlement to the LWDA.

VIII. SETTLEMENT PROVISIONS

The non-reversionary gross settlement amount is $1,300,000. Attorneys’ fees of up to one-third of the gross settlement amount ($433,333.33), litigation costs of up to $40,000, and settlement administration costs of up to $12,550. $70,000 will be allocated to PAGA penalties, 75% of which ($52,500) will be paid to the LWDA and the remaining 25% ($17,500) will be dispensed to “Aggrieved Employees” who are defined as “all persons currently or formerly employed by Defendant as a non-exempt employee in the State of California at any time during the PAGA period [October 25, 2021 to November 13, 2025].” Plaintiff will seek a service award of up to $15,000.

The net settlement amount will be allocated to Class Members who are defined as “all persons currently or formerly employed by Defendant as a non-exempt employee in the State of California at any time during the Class Period [May 1, 2018 to November 13, 2025].”¹ The average individual settlement payment will be approximately $675. For tax purposes, 20% of each Class Member’s settlement payment will be allocated to wages and 80% will be allocated to interests and penalties. Defendant will pay the employer side payroll taxes separate and apart from the Settlement. Funds associated with checks uncashed after 180 days will be transmitted to State Controller’s Unclaimed Property Fund.

In exchange for settlement, Class Members who do not opt out will release:

[A]ll claims arising during the Class Period that were alleged, or reasonably could have been alleged, based on the facts stated in the Operative Complaint.

Aggrieved Employees, who consistent with the statute will not be able to opt out of the PAGA portion of the settlement, will release:

¹ Class Counsel failed to provide the estimated net settlement amount, however, using the figures above, the Court calculates it to be approximately $729,116.67.

[A]ll claims for PAGA penalties arising during the PAGA Period that were alleged, or reasonably could have been alleged, based on the facts stated in the Operative Complaint, the PAGA Notice.

The foregoing releases are appropriately tailored to the allegations at issue. (See Amaro v. Anaheim Arena Management, LLC (2021) 69 Cal.App.5th 521, 537.)

IX. FAIRNESS OF SETTLEMENT

Based on available data provided by Defendant, Class Counsel engaged an expert to calculate Defendant's maximum exposure, which is as follows: $431,134 (minimum wage claim); $160,013 (unpaid overtime wages claim); $1,490,317 (meal period claim); $5,940,160 (rest break claim); $5,200,000 (waiting time penalties); $1,500,000 (wage statement claim); and $4,900,000 (PAGA penalties)—totaling $19,621,624.

Class counsel then considered the potential risk, expense, and complexity posed by litigation, such as difficulties of obtaining class certification and the merits of claims. Accordingly, Class Counsel adjusted the value of the claims as follows: 50% - 70% discount associated with class certification and 50% - 80% discount associated with the merits of the claims.

Consequently, Defendant's realistic exposure is as follows: $25,868.04 (minimum wage claims); $32,002.60 (unpaid overtime wages claim); $357,676.08 (meal period claim); $356,409.60 (rest break claim); $312,000 (waiting time penalties); $90,000 (wage statement claim); and $70,000 (PAGA penalties)—totaling $1,243,956.28.

The gross settlement amount is approximately 6.62% of the maximum exposure, which is within the range of recoveries typically approved by California courts. (See Cavazos v. Salas Concrete, Inc. (E.D. Cal., Feb 18, 2022, No. 1:19-cv-00062-DAD-EPG) 2022 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30201, at *41-42 [citing cases approving settlements in the range of 5 to 35 percent of the maximum potential exposure].) Moreover, the gross settlement amount is approximately 104% of the realistic exposure which is well above the range of recoveries typically approved.

Considering the portion of the case's value attributable to uncertain penalties, claims that could be difficult to certify for class treatment, and the multiple, dependent contingencies that Plaintiff would have had to overcome to prevail on the claims, the settlement achieves a good result for the class. For purposes of preliminary approval, the Court finds that the settlement is fair and reasonable to the class, and the PAGA allocation is genuine, meaningful, and reasonable in light of the statute's purposes.

X. PROPOSED SETTLEMENT CLASS

Plaintiff requests that the following settlement class be provisionally certified:

All persons currently or formerly employed by Defendant as a non-exempt employee in the State of California at any time during the Class Period.

A. Legal Standard for Certifying a Class for Settlement Purposes

Rule 3.769(d) of the California Rules of Court states that “[t]he court may make an order approving or denying certification of a provisional settlement class after [a] preliminary settlement hearing.” California Code of Civil Procedure Section 382 authorizes certification of a class “when the question is one of a common or general interest, of many persons, or when the parties are numerous, and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court”

Section 382 requires the plaintiff to demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence: (1) an ascertainable class and (2) a well-defined community of interest among the class members. (Sav-On Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 34 Cal.4th 319, 326, 332 (Sav-On Drug Stores).) “Other relevant considerations include the probability that each class member will come forward ultimately to prove his or her separate claim to a portion of the total recovery and whether the class approach would actually serve to deter and redress alleged wrongdoing.” (Linder v. Thrifty Oil Co. (2000) 23 Cal.4th 429, 435.) The plaintiff has the burden of establishing that class treatment will yield “substantial benefits” to both “the litigants and to the court.” (Blue Chip Stamps v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal.3d 381, 385.)

In the settlement context, “the court’s evaluation of the certification issues is somewhat different from its consideration of certification issues when the class action has not yet settled.” (Luckey v. Superior Court (2014) 228 Cal.App.4th 81, 93.) As no trial is anticipated in the settlement-only context, the case management issues inherent in the ascertainable class determination need not be confronted, and the court’s review is more lenient in this respect. (Id. at pp. 93–94.) But considerations designed to protect absentees by blocking unwarranted or overbroad class definitions require heightened scrutiny in the settlement-only class context, since the court will lack the usual opportunity to adjust the class as proceedings unfold. (Id. at p. 94.)

B. Ascertainable Class

A class is ascertainable “when it is defined in terms of objective characteristics and common transactional facts that make the ultimate identification of class members possible when that identification becomes necessary.” (Noel v. Thrifty Payless, Inc. (2019) 7 Cal.5th 955, 980 (Noel).) A class definition satisfying these requirements puts members of the class on notice that their rights may be adjudicated in the proceeding, so they must decide whether to intervene, opt out, or do nothing and live with the consequences. This kind of class definition also advances due process by supplying a concrete basis for determining who will and will not be bound by (or benefit from) any judgment.

(Noel, supra, 7 Cal.5th at p. 980, citation omitted.)

“As a rule, a representative plaintiff in a class action need not introduce evidence establishing how notice of the action will be communicated to individual class members in order to show an ascertainable class.” (Noel, supra, 7 Cal.5th at p. 984.) Still, it has long been held that “[c]lass members are ‘ascertainable’ where they may be readily identified ... by reference to official records.” (Rose v. City of Hayward (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 926, 932, disapproved of on another ground by Noel, supra, 7 Cal.5th 955; see also Cohen v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2009) 178 Cal.App.4th 966, 975-976 [“The defined class of all HD Package subscribers is precise, with objective characteristics and transactional parameters, and can be determined by DIRECTV's own account records. No more is needed."].)

Here, the estimated 1,124 Class members are readily identifiable based on Defendant's records, and the settlement Class is appropriately defined based on objective characteristics. The Court finds that the settlement Class is numerous, ascertainable, and appropriately defined.

C. Community of Interest

The "community-of-interest" requirement encompasses three factors: (1) predominant questions of law or fact, (2) class representatives with claims or defenses typical of the class, and (3) class representatives who can adequately represent the class. (Sav-On Drug Stores, supra, 34 Cal.4th at pp. 326, 332.)

For the first community of interest factor, "[i]n order to determine whether common questions of fact predominate the trial court must examine the issues framed by the pleadings and the law applicable to the causes of action alleged." (Hicks v. Kaufman & Broad Home Corp. (2001) 89 Cal.App.4th 908, 916 (Hicks).) The court must also examine evidence of any conflict of interest among the proposed class members. (See J.P. Morgan & Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 113 Cal.App.4th 195, 215.) The ultimate question is whether the issues which may be jointly tried, when compared with those requiring separate adjudication, are so numerous or substantial that the maintenance of a class action would be good for the judicial process and to the litigants. (Lockheed Martin Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 29 Cal.4th 1096, 1104–1105 (Lockheed Martin).) "As a general rule if the defendant's liability can be determined by facts common to all members of the class, a class will be certified even if the members must individually prove their damages." (Hicks, supra, 89 Cal.App.4th at p. 916.)

Here, common legal and factual issues predominate. Plaintiff's claims all arise from Defendant's wage and hour practices and policies regarding reimbursement for business related expenses.

As for the second factor,

The typicality requirement is meant to ensure that the class representative is able to adequately represent the class and focus on common issues. It is only when a defense unique to the class representative will be a major focus of the litigation, or when the class representative's interests are antagonistic to or in conflict with the objectives of those she purports to represent that denial of class certification is appropriate. But even then, the court should determine if it would be feasible to divide the class into subclasses to eliminate the conflict and allow the class action to be maintained.

(Medraza v. Honda of North Hollywood (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 89, 99, internal citations, brackets, and quotation marks omitted.)

Like the other members of the proposed class, Plaintiff was employed by Defendant as a nonexempt employee and alleges that she experienced the violations at issue. The anticipated defenses are not unique to Plaintiff, and there is no indication that Plaintiff's interests are otherwise in conflict with those of the proposed class.

Finally, adequacy of representation “depends on whether the plaintiff’s attorney is qualified to conduct the proposed litigation and the plaintiff’s interests are not antagonistic to the interests of the class.” (McGhee v. Bank of America (1976) 60 Cal.App.3d 442, 450.) The class representative does not necessarily have to incur all of the damages suffered by each different class member in order to provide adequate representation to the class. (Wershba, supra, 91 Cal.App.4th at p. 238.) “Differences in individual class members’ proof of damages [are] not fatal to class certification. Only a conflict that goes to the very subject matter of the litigation will defeat a party’s claim of representative status.” (Ibid., internal citations and quotation marks omitted.)

Plaintiff has the same interest in maintaining this action as any Class member would have. Further, she has hired experienced counsel. Plaintiff has sufficiently demonstrated adequacy of representation.

D. Substantial Benefits of Class Certification

“[A] class action should not be certified unless substantial benefits accrue both to litigants and the courts. . . .” (Basurco v. 21st Century Ins. (2003) 108 Cal.App.4th 110, 120, internal quotation marks omitted.) The question is whether a class action would be superior to individual lawsuits. (Ibid.) “Thus, even if questions of law or fact predominate, the lack of superiority provides an alternative ground to deny class certification.” (Ibid.) Generally, “a class action is proper where it provides small claimants with a method of obtaining redress and when numerous parties suffer injury of insufficient size to warrant individual action.” (Id. at pp. 120–121, internal quotation marks omitted.)

Here, there are an estimated 1,124 Class Members. It would be inefficient for the Court to hear and decide the same issues separately and repeatedly for each class member. Further, it would be cost prohibitive for each class member to file suit individually, as each member would have the potential for little to no monetary recovery. It is clear that a class action provides substantial benefits to both the litigants and the Court in this case.

XI. NOTICE

The content of a class notice is subject to court approval. (Cal. Rules of Court, rule 3.769(f).) “The notice must contain an explanation of the proposed settlement and procedures for class members to follow in filing written objections to it and in arranging to appear at the settlement hearing and state any objections to the proposed settlement.” (Ibid.) In determining the manner of the notice, the court must consider: “(1) The interests of the class; (2) The type of relief requested; (3) The stake of the individual class members; (4) The cost of notifying class members; (5) The resources of the parties; (6) The possible prejudice to class members who do not receive notice; and (7) The res judicata effect on class members.” (Cal. Rules of Court, rule 3.766(e).)

Here, the notice, which will be provided in English, informs the Class Members of the nature of the lawsuit and their rights under the terms of the Settlement and applicable law. It includes: a detailed explanation of the case, including the basic contentions or denials of the Parties and the basic terms of the Settlement; a statement that the court will exclude the member from the class if they request so by a specified date; a procedure for the member to follow in requesting exclusions from the class; an explanation that members of the Class can participate in the Settlement by doing nothing; a statement that the judgment, whether favorable or not, will bind all members who do not request exclusion; and a statement that any member who does not request exclusion may, if the member so desires, enter an appearance through counsel. Class Members are given 60 days to exclude themselves or object.

The form of notice is generally adequate, but must be modified to instruct Class members that they may opt out of or object to the settlement simply by providing their name, without the need to provide their phone number or other personal information.

Regarding appearances at the final fairness hearing, the notice shall be modified to instruct class members as follows:

Although class members may appear in person, the judge overseeing this case encourages remote appearances. Class members who wish to appear remotely should contact class counsel at least three days before the hearing if possible. Remote appearances must be made through UDC, unless otherwise arranged with the Court. Please go to <https://santaclara.courts.ca.gov/online-services/remote-hearings> to find the appropriate link. Also, please note that that you must register in advance to appear remotely..

Turning to the notice procedure, as articulated above, the parties have selected ILYM as the settlement administrator. No later than 15 days after preliminary approval, Defendant will deliver the Class data (i.e., Class list and related qualifying workweeks and contact information) to ILYM. ILYM, in turn, will mail the notice packet within 3 days of receiving the Class data, subsequent to updating Class members' addresses using the National Change of Address Database. Any returned notices will be re-mailed within 3 business days to any forwarding address provided or a better address located through a skip trace or other search. Class members who receive a re-mailed notice will have an additional 14 days to respond. These notice procedures are appropriate and are approved.

XII. SERVICE AWARD, FEES, AND COSTS

Plaintiff requests a service award of $15,000.

The rationale for making enhancement or incentive awards to named plaintiffs is that they should be compensated for the expense or risk they have incurred in conferring a benefit on other members of the class. An incentive award is appropriate if it is necessary to induce an individual to participate in the suit. Criteria courts may consider in determining whether to make an incentive award include: 1) the risk to the class representative in commencing suit, both financial and otherwise; 2) the notoriety and personal difficulties encountered by the class representative; 3) the amount of time and effort spent by the class representative; 4) the duration of the litigation and; 5) the personal benefit (or lack thereof) enjoyed by the class representative as a result of the litigation.

These "incentive awards" to class representatives must not be disproportionate to the amount of time and energy expended in pursuit of the lawsuit.

(Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2010) 186 Cal.App.4th 1380, 1394-1395, internal punctuation and citations omitted; see also Covillo v. Specialty's Café (N.D. Cal. 2014) 2014

U.S.Dist.LEXIS 29837, at *29 [incentive awards are particularly appropriate where a plaintiff undertakes a significant “reputational risk” in bringing an action against an employer].)

Plaintiff submitted a declaration in support of her request. While Plaintiff described some of her efforts in this matter, she did not provide an estimate of the amount of time spent on this litigation. Accordingly, prior to the final approval hearing, Plaintiff shall submit a supplemental declaration indicating how many hours she spent working on this case and any other factors she would like the Court to consider.

The administrative costs in the amount of $12,550 is supported by the declaration of Lisa Mullins, President for ILYM. Thus, it is approved.

The court also has an independent right and responsibility to review the requested attorney fees and only award so much as it determines reasonable. (See Garabedian v. Los Angeles Cellular Telephone Co. (2004) 118 Cal.App.4th 123, 127-128.) Class Counsel will seek attorneys’ fees of up to one-third of the gross settlement amount (currently estimated to be $433,333.33), and litigation costs for up to $40,000. Prior to any final approval hearing, Class Counsel shall submit lodestar information (including hourly rate and hours worked) as well as evidence of actual litigation costs incurred.

XIII. CONCLUSION

Plaintiff’s motion for preliminary approval is GRANTED.

The final approval hearing shall take place on December 3, 2026 at 1:30 in Department 22. The following Class is preliminarily certified for settlement purposes:

All persons currently or formerly employed by Defendant as a non-exempt employee in the State of California at any time during the Class Period.

The Court will prepare the order.

Case Name: Cowley v. Apple, Inc.

Case No.: 23CV424597

Plaintiff William Cowley (“Plaintiff”) alleges that Defendant Apple, Inc. (“Defendant”) wrongfully terminated his Apple Account without justification, resulting in conversion among other claims.

Before the Court is Defendant’s motion for reclassification, which Plaintiff opposes. For the reasons discussed below, the Court DENIES the motion for reclassification.

FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

According to the Second Amended Complaint (“SAC”), Defendant designs, manufactures, and markets smartphones, personal computers, tablets, watches, and accessories, and sells, or otherwise makes available related content for use on said devices. (SAC, ¶ 10.) To purchase or obtain content, iCloud storage, or make in-app purchases, consumers must create and use an Apple Account—formerly known as an Apple ID—which requires registration of a valid method of payment for any purchases made through Apple. (Id., ¶¶ 7, 12.) On October 25, 2021, Plaintiff attempted to make a transaction on the Apple ecosystem but received notification that the transaction could not be completed. (Id., ¶ 68.) Defendant terminated Plaintiff’s Apple Account that same day and removed access to his electronically stored content—including years of personal content. (Id., ¶ 9.) Although Plaintiff contacted Defendant and reviewed each transaction with Defendant’s representatives to confirm their legitimacy and verified all payment methods on file, Plaintiff was advised that his account was disabled for “security reasons”, and Defendant never articulated the basis for such concerns and refused to correct the termination or provide Plaintiff with access to his stored property. (Id., ¶¶ 31-32, 70.) Plaintiff lost all content he acquired and maintained with his Apple Account since 2007 such as sentimental items and memories and documents regularly used as part of his employment. (Id., ¶¶ 75, 77.)

On September 16, 2025, the Court (Hon. Adams) sustained in part Defendant’s demurrer to the SAC and granted Defendant’s motion to strike (the “September 16, 2025 Order”). The operative SAC alleges the following causes of action: (1) conversion; (2) unjust enrichment; and (3) violation of California Business and Professions Code section 17200 (the “UCL”).

MOTION FOR RECLASSIFICATION

1. Legal Standard

A court may grant a motion for reclassification and enter an order for reclassification when (1) the class is incorrectly classified, and (2) the moving party shows good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier. (Code Civ. Proc., § 403.040, subd. (b).) A case must be transferred where either “(i) the absence of jurisdiction is apparent before trial from the complaint, petition, or related documents, or (ii) during the course of pretrial litigation, it becomes clear that the matter will ‘necessarily’ result in a verdict below the superior court jurisdictional amount, and the court affords the parties an opportunity to contest transfer.” (Walker v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal.3d 257, 262 (Walker), emphasis original.)
