The Court's tentative is to GRANT the motion for attorney's fees in the amount of $20,000 plus costs in the amount of $2,085.92.

First, Plaintiff seeks a multiplier in this case which does not appear to be novel or complicated in any way that the Court can understand. Plaintiff's argument appears to be that a multiplier should be applied in contingency cases, which would appear to mean that a multiplier should be applied in every Song-Beverly case. That is not what the law is, as the Court understands it.

Second, the Court is aware of the general range of awards that are given in this department and other departments in this County for cases with the kind of litigation history and posture presented here. The Court is also aware that after AB 1755, many of the processes for resolving a case have been streamlined. This case appears to have resolved with little to no friction or litigation activity beyond the bare minimum required to file the case, do basic discovery, and mediate the case.

Given all of that, the Court finds that the amount requested is higher than what should reasonably have been billed for this amount of work and grants the fee request in the amount stated above.
