

is a requirement that counsel listen to the reasons offered and make a good faith attempt to resolve the issue.” (Lelo v Cornerstone Building Inspection Service (2001) 86 Cal.App.4th 1109, 1124.)

Wendy noticed Chapman’s deposition for April 20, 2026, and was told days before the deposition that Chapman could not attend due to a scheduling conflict. (Declaration of Erick Palafox, ¶¶ 4-9.) Chapman’s counsel initially indicated that they would provide alternative dates for his deposition. (Id. at ¶ 10.) However, shortly after this representation, they indicated that they wanted to avoid having Chapman’s deposition taken due to his age and his intent to consent liability. (Id. at ¶¶ 11 and 13.) Wendy rejected Chapman’s attempt to not have his deposition taken. (Id. at ¶ 12.) The parties exchanged emails and spoke over the telephone regarding this issue but could not resolve this dispute. (Id. at ¶¶ 13-16.)

Chapman has provided no evidence that he is unable to sit for his deposition. While Chapman is 88 years old, accommodations can be made if he needs them – like a remote deposition or frequent breaks during deposition. His age alone is no reason to preclude his deposition from going forward. Chapman also argues that his deposition is not necessary because he intends to consent to liability. He points to his responses to requests for admission to support this assertion. While Chapman responds to requests indicating that he “admits responsibility for the ACCIDENT,” he also fails to deny requests that pertain to Wendy’s liability or fault for the accident. When asked to admit that Wendy did nothing to cause the accident, Chapman responds that he lacks sufficient information and knowledge to admit or deny this request. He responds in the same manner to requests asking him to admit that Wendy was not comparatively negligent. Due to this, it does not appear that Chapman is affirmatively admitting to liability for the accident.

Additionally, this lawsuit is not entirely based on the accident. It is also based on allegations of fraud against Abebe and State Farm for misrepresentations made that allegedly pertain to Abebe’s communications with Chapman. (Complaint, ¶¶ 65 and 74.) Chapman appears to contend that a motion to sever could impact the fraud allegations. While a motion to sever has been filed and is pending, it is brought under CCP § 1048(b), which allows for separate trials of causes of action asserted in a complaint. It would have no impact on discovery.

Wendy seeks sanctions against Chapman. Under CCP § 2025.450(g)(1), if a motion to compel a deposition is granted the court must impose sanctions unless doing so is unjust or the opposing party acted with substantial justification.

Motion to Compel Deposition of Defendant William Chapman GRANTED.

Defendant to be deposed within 20 days of this order.

Sanctions in the amount of $1,323 awarded (2.5 hours at $500/hour + $73 filing fee), payable in 30 days to Plaintiffs’ attorney.
