The Court's tentative is to GRANT the motion.

The defense's opposition is not persuasive. Among other things, the opposition refers to an apparent family rumor about another child fathered by one of the plaintiffs. Why is this issue being raised at this thirteenth hour? This feeble argument casts the entire opposition in a poor light, in the Court's view.

The Court is not persuaded by the argument regarding the expiration of the 120-day period either. The Court's overall impression is that the defense entered into the settlement agreement with no real intention to carry through on its obligations in the agreement, and continues to delay resolution of this matter. Unless the defense can persuade the Court that this view is incorrect, the Court intends to enforce the agreement as plaintiffs request.
