

		While Plaintiff contends that only her wrist and head were injured, her own Complaint alleges that the fall injured her health, strength and activity, caused severe shock to her body, and caused and continue to cause her great mental and physical pain and suffering. Furthermore, the records are limited in time (date of incident to present). Pursuant to the above, restricting the subpoenas to Plaintiff's left wrist and head would prejudice Defendants' ability to obtain discovery relating to Plaintiff's damages and causation. However, because these records may include medical information that is not relevant to this action, the court finds that a protective order is required to limit the use and dissemination for the records produced pursuant to each of the five subpoenas. Defendants and Plaintiff shall submit a proposed protective order for the records responsive to the five subpoenas within 14 days of this ruling. Defendants shall give notice.
