Case Number: 25VECV01957 Hearing Date: June 25, 2026 Dept: T

25VECV01957 ZEBIAN V JAGUAR

1. Plaintiff's motion to compel further response and production to RFP. The court advances defendant's motion compel deposition of plaintiff. Both motions are denied as untimely and are both denied.

2. Ex parte application: Denied as to special set of motion to compel depo. No good cause shown. Defendant had plenty of time to depose plaintiff as it appeared in the case in May 2025, over one year ago. Instead, it waited 10 months before asking for the deposition and then waited months before filing the motion to compel. Had it filed the motion in April, the court would have ordered the deposition within 10 days and it would have been completed by now.

3. Concerning request for continuance, the court set this case for trial in Sept. 2025 for 5/7/2026. In March 2026, the court granted a continuance of the trial and indicated in the order "No further continuances."

This court has a strict policy on continuances of Lemon Law cases. In the Sept 2025 order originally setting the trial advised it would not continue the trial.

Defendant should have selected an expert who was available for the trial date. There is nothing to indicate when he was hired, when counsel became aware of his vacation, and most importantly, whether there are ANY other experts other than Brandon Sangster who have testified as an expert and corporate representative for Jaguar in California and why that person or persons cannot be substituted.

Finally, trial is set for July 9th. Mr. Sangster is returning July 17th. There is no trial on any Friday. The court will be dark for trial on July 20 and 21. If jury selection starts on July 9th and plaintiff has to put on his case first, and there is no trial on Fridays, the trial will still be ongoing when he returns.

Motions in limine are untimely and will not be considered.
