Case Name: Lee Drone v. Peter D. Bear, et al.

Case No.: 25CV480264

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA

COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA

Specially-Appearing Defendant Ian Goodman (“Defendant”) moves under code of Civil Procedure Section 418.10 to quash service of summons on the ground that this Court lacks personal jurisdiction over Defendant. Notice of Motion (the “Motion”) at 2:4-7 (filed: Jan. 27, 2026).

The Motion came on for hearing on September 4, 2026, at 9:00 AM in Department 16. After reviewing all the papers and the record, and giving counsel for all parties the full and fair opportunity to be heard, the Court finds and rules as follows.

I. Factual Allegations

On November 1, 2021, Plaintiff and Ian Goodman , as co-owners, purchased the real property located at 1430 Ellen Avenue, Madison, Wisconsin (“Wisconsin Property”). Dane County Title Company acted as the settlement agent for the transaction (Complaint ¶¶ 1, 2)

Some dispute arose between Plaintiff and Ian Goodman. As a result, Ian Goodman, through his attorney Peter Bear, sent various email communications to Plaintiff regarding their co-ownership agreement, offer to purchase Plaintiff’s share, Goodman’s petition for harassment injunction, and service of the restraining order. Peter Bear and Plaintiff exchanged email communications pertaining to the legal proceedings in Wisconsin, discovery, settlement terms and proposals. Some of the email communications contained production of Plaintiff’s loan application without redacting Plaintiff’s private information, and Goodman’s petition, which contained false statements. (Complaint ¶¶ 2-10, 26-107)

As a result of Defendants’ wrongful acts and communications, Plaintiff was unlawfully excluded from use and disposition of the Wisconsin Property; has incurred litigation costs, travel costs, loss of work time; has suffered reputational harm and emotional distress. (Complaint ¶¶ 197-198)

II. Legal Standard on Motion to Quash

A defendant, on or before the last day of his or her time to plead or within any further time that the court may for good cause allow” may move “to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction of the court over him or her” that results from lack of proper service. (Code. Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1). A defendant has 30 days after the service of the summons to file a responsive pleading. (Code. Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3).) “Service of process, under longstanding tradition in our system of justice, is fundamental to any procedural imposition on a named defendant.” (AO Alfa-Bank v. Yakovlev (2018) 21Cal.App.5th 189, 202 [internal quotations marks and citation omitted].) To establish personal jurisdiction, compliance with statutory procedures for service of process is essential. (Kremerman v. White (2021) 71 Cal.App.5th 358, 371.) Defendant's knowledge of the action does not dispense with statutory requirements for service of summons. (Kappel v. Bartlett (1988) 200 Cal.App.3d 1457, 1466.)

When a defendant moves to quash service of process on jurisdictional grounds, the plaintiff has the initial burden of demonstrating facts justifying the exercise of jurisdiction. (See, Jayone Foods, Inc. v. Aekyung Industrial Co. Ltd. (2019) 31 Cal.App.5th 543, 553.) “The plaintiff must do more than merely allege jurisdictional facts. It must present evidence sufficient to justify a finding that California may properly exercise jurisdiction over the defendant.” (In re Automobile Antitrust Cases I & II (2005) 135 Cal.App.4th 100, 110.) “If the plaintiff meets this initial burden, then the defendant has the burden of demonstrating that the exercise of jurisdiction would be unreasonable.” (Jayone Foods, supra, 31 Cal.App.5th at p. 553.)

III. Threshold procedural considerations

Plaintiff, in his opposition, objects to the timeliness of the motion and the electronic service of the motion, to which he had not consented. (Opposition at 6:10-19)

A motion to quash must be made by the last day for a party to file a responsive pleading, or within any further time the court allows for good cause. (Code Civ. Proc., § 418.10, subd. (a).) The Court notes that Defendant was personally served on December 18, 2025. (Proof of Service filed January 8, 2026) As such, Defendant was required to file his motion to quash no later than January 19, 2026. Therefore, Defendant’s motion is untimely. Nonetheless, “[a] trial court has broad discretion to accept or reject late-filed papers.” (Jack v. Ring LLC (2023) 91 Cal.App.5th 1186, 1210, internal citation omitted.)

Defendant contends his motion was originally filed electronically on January 20, 2026, but was denied for failure to reserve a hearing date. The motion and proof of service was then revised and resubmitted on January 27, 2026. Defendant submits email communications from Onelegal, a litigation support platform that handles court filings, showing the motion to quash was filed on January 20 and was rejected by the Court’s clerk. (Defendant’s Exhibits A-C.)

Plaintiff filed his opposition to the motion on June 3, 2026, contesting the merits of Defendant’s motion, despite his claim of inadequate service and notice. It is well settled that a party’s opposition to a motion on its merits is a waiver of any defects or irregularities in the notice of the motion. This rule applies even when no notice was given at all. (Carlton v. Quint, (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 690, 697.)

Given the totality of the circumstances in this matter, the Court exercises its discretion to consider Defendant’s motion to quash and consider any defect in the service of the motion as waived. Accordingly, the Court now proceeds to resolve this Motion on its merits.

IV. Analysis of the Motion to Quash

To comport with federal and state due process, California may only exercise jurisdiction when a defendant has sufficient minimum contact with the state to satisfy traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. California recognizes two ways in which the constitutional “minimum contacts” requirement may be satisfied. General jurisdiction exists where the nonresident defendant's contacts with the forum state are so “extensive or wide-ranging” as to justify jurisdiction even for purposes unrelated to the defendant's contacts. (Safe-Lab, Inc. v. Weinberger (1987) 193 Cal.App.3d 1050, 1053; Boaz v. Boyle & Co. (1995) 40 Cal.App.4th 700, 717)

Alternatively, a court may exercise specific jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant only if: (1) the nonresident defendant has purposefully availed himself of forum benefits; (2) the controversy relates to, or arises out of, the nonresident defendant's contacts with the forum; and (3) the exercise of jurisdiction comports with fair play and substantial justice. The specific jurisdiction analysis focuses on the relationship between the defendant, the forum, and the litigation. (See, Zehia v. Superior Court (2020) 45 Cal.App.5th 543, 551–552.)

“The purposeful availment inquiry ... focuses on the defendant's intentionality. This prong is only satisfied when the defendant purposefully and voluntarily directs his activities toward the forum so that he should expect, by virtue of the benefit he receives, to be subject to the court's jurisdiction based on his contacts with the forum. Thus, the purposeful availment requirement ensures that a defendant will not be haled into a jurisdiction solely as a result of random, fortuitous, or attenuated contacts, or of the unilateral activity of another party or a third person. When a [defendant] purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum State, it has clear notice that it is subject to suit there, and can act to alleviate the risk of burdensome litigation by procuring insurance, passing the expected costs on to customers, or, if the risks are too great, severing its connection with the State.” (Pavlovich v. Superior Court, (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 262, 269; internal citations and quotes omitted)

Courts apply the “effects test” to determine purposeful availment not only in defamation context but also in other intentional torts, including business torts. (See, Id. at 272-273, fn. 3; IMO Industries, Inc. v. Kiekert AG (3d Cir. 1998) 155 F.3d 254, 259-260, 261; Far West Capital, Inc. v. Towne (10th Cir. 1995) 46 F.3d 1071, 1077.) Under this test, intentional conduct occurring elsewhere may give rise to jurisdiction in California where it is calculated to cause injury in California. The defendant must expressly aim or target his conduct toward California, with the knowledge that his intentional conduct would cause harm in the forum. (See, Pavlovich, supra, 29 Cal. 4th at pp. 271–273; Calder v. Jones 465 U.S. 783, 788-790.) California courts emphasize that the analysis must focus on the defendant's contacts with the forum state itself, and not merely the defendant's contacts with a person who resides there. The proper inquiry is whether the defendants’ conduct connects them to the forum in a meaningful way. (See, Burdick v. Superior Court, (2015) 233 Cal.App.4th 8, 13.)

Specially-appearing Defendant contends the Court lacks personal jurisdiction over him because (1) he has not purposefully availed himself of California, (2) Plaintiff's claims do not arise out of California contacts, and (3) exercising jurisdiction would be unreasonable and inconsistent with fair play and substantial justice. (Motion at 6:6-24, 7:22-8:3) More specifically, Defendant argues that the subject communications “received in California were incidental to Wisconsin-centered litigation and a Wisconsin property/title dispute and were not an attempt to exploit, target, or conduct activities within California. Plaintiff's unilateral decision to be in California when receiving litigation-related communications does not transform Wisconsin centered conduct into California-directed activity.” (Motion at 6:25-7:3) Defendant’s submitted declaration supports his contention.

In opposition, Plaintiff argues that specific jurisdiction exists because Defendant not only traveled to California once prior to the purchase of the Subject property, but also purposefully directed and transmitted his communications/materials that were associated with the Wisconsin dispute to him in California. Those communications and materials included emails, affidavits, settlement-related communications, injunction-related communications, demands, and disclosures. (Opposition at 2:22-4:10)

Plaintiff submits his Declaration in support of his Opposition. Plaintiff declares:

- In 2024, he filed a Wisconsin partition action concerning the Wisconsin Property, Case No. 2024CV000216, which remains pending. (Decl. ¶ 4)
 - In 2025, he filed Wisconsin actions 2025CV001149 and 2025CV001521, which asserted certain non-property claims arising from related underlying events. (Decl. ¶ 6)
 - He, thereafter, elected to pursue certain related non-property claims in California, where he has resided and worked since 2019. (Decl. ¶ 8)
 - Ian Goodman personally visited Plaintiff in California in 2021, before the purchase of the Wisconsin Property (Decl. ¶ 11)
 - Prior to purchasing the Wisconsin Property, he and Ian Goodman exchanged emails pertaining to their co-ownership of the Property, loan application, appraisal, financing, etc. (Decl. ¶¶ 10-13)
 - During relevant times, he received communications and materials concerning the disputes and matters referenced in the complaint. The communications included emails, litigation-related communications, proposals, settlement-related communications, affidavits, demands, and related materials concerning the disputes. (Decl. ¶¶ 15-17)
 - He received email communications from Defendants concerning the disputes and matters referenced in the complaint. These emails included litigation-related communications, proposals, settlement-related communications, affidavits, demands, disclosures of confidential financial information, and related materials concerning the underlying disputes. (Decl. ¶¶ 17, 20)
- Declaration of Lee Drone in Support of Plaintiff’s Opposition to Defendants’

Motion to Quash (filed: June 3, 2026).

Here, the Complaint alleges various and sundry torts arising from the content of email communications between the parties. The communications pertained to Ian Goodman's application for a restraining order against Plaintiff, service of the restraining order via publication, title and possessory dispute over the Wisconsin Property, settlement proposals and terms, related evidence supporting the restraining order, related evidence supporting the title dispute, Wisconsin court docket/hearing/filings. Communications predominantly occurred between Plaintiff and Peter Bear, who represented Ian Goodman. Plaintiff himself sent emails to Mr. Bear addressing the legal proceedings and requesting information, documents, and evidence. (Complaint ¶¶ 2-10, 26-107) Electronic communications, including emails and telephone calls, may establish the requisite minimum contacts if a defendant "reaches back" into California to create a "continuing obligation" or to conduct business with a resident. However, sending communications about legal proceedings occurring in a foreign state generally lacks the necessary California focus. Simply transmitting communications to a California resident with knowledge of their residency is insufficient to satisfy the express aiming requirement if the subject matter of the communication is anchored in another forum. If the emails merely transmit information regarding foreign legal proceedings, they constitute contact with the Plaintiff rather than contact purposefully directed at the forum state itself, making the contact too random, fortuitous, or attenuated to justify personal jurisdiction.

Furthermore, Defendant's single short travel to California, a year prior to the purchase of the Wisconsin Property, does not change the fortuitous and attenuated nature of his contact with California especially when the trip was neither connected to any business activity in California nor led to any tort claim. (Goodman Decl. ¶¶ 6-8) It is well settled that jurisdiction is proper even during a single, brief visit when a tort is committed. The classic example is a visitor who negligently causes a car accident. (See, Doe v. Damron, (2021) 70 Cal. App. 5th 684, 692, citing Internat. Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 316.)

Neither Plaintiff's declaration nor his verified complaint shows that Defendant's single social travel to California led to a tort claim within the State, or that his out-of-state communications were expressly aimed at California rather than at him personally. On this record, Plaintiff fails to meet his burden of demonstrating facts that justify the exercise of personal jurisdiction over Defendant here.

V. Conclusion & Order

For all the reasons explained above, the Motion of Specially-Appearing Defendant Ian Goodman under code of Civil Procedure Section 418.10 to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction is GRANTED.
