connection with this motion.

On October 7, 2024, plaintiffs Lara Kusez (aka Lara Ghraoui) ("Kusez") and Kari Riley ("Riley") (collectively, "Plaintiffs") filed the Complaint against defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. d/b/a Skies Are Blue ("Defendant") for (1) first count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for Employment on April 29, 2022, by plaintiff Kari Riley, (2) second count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for Employment on September 30, 2022, by plaintiff Kari Riley, (3) third count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for Employment on November 14, 2022, by plaintiff Kari Riley, (4) fourth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for Employment on December 8, 2022, by plaintiff Kari Riley, (5) fifth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for Employment on March 14, 2023, by plaintiff Kari Riley, and (6) sixth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for Employment on April 18, 2023, by plaintiff Lara Kusez.

On October 2, 2025, Plaintiffs dismissed the third count without prejudice.

EVIDENTIARY OBJECTIONS

The court rules on Plaintiff's evidentiary objections as follows:

The court sustains Objections Nos. 1, 7.

The court overrules Objections Nos. 2-6, 8-24.

LEGAL STANDARD

The purpose of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication "is to provide courts with a mechanism to cut through the parties' pleadings in order to determine whether, despite their allegations, trial is in fact necessary to resolve their dispute."

(Aguilar

v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal.4th 826, 843.) "Code of Civil Procedure section 437c, subdivision (c), requires the trial judge to grant summary judgment if all the evidence submitted, and 'all inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence' and uncontradicted by other inferences or evidence, show that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." (Adler v. Manor Healthcare Corp. (1992) 7 Cal.App.4th 1110, 1119.)

"On a motion for summary judgment, the initial burden is always on the moving party to make a prima facie showing that there are no triable issues of material fact." (Scalf v. D.B.

Log Homes, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal.App.4th 1510, 1519.) For the purposes of motion for summary judgment and summary adjudication, "[a] plaintiff or cross-complainant has met his or her burden of showing that there is no defense to a cause of action if that party has proved each element of the cause of action entitling the party to judgment on the cause of action."

(Code Civ. Proc., § 437c, subd. (p)(1).)

“Once the plaintiff . . . has met that burden, the burden shifts to the defendant . . . to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to the cause of action or a defense thereto.” (Code Civ. Proc., § 437c, subd. (p)(1).) “When deciding whether to grant summary judgment, the court must consider all of the evidence set forth in the papers (except evidence to which the court has sustained an objection), as well as all reasonable inferences that may be drawn from that evidence, in the light most favorable to the party opposing summary judgment.” (Avivi v. Centro Medico Urgente Medical Center (2008) 159 Cal.App.4th 463, 467; Code

Civ. Proc., § 437c, subd. (c).)

DISCUSSION

1. First

Count of Waiting Time Penalties Under Labor Code Section 203 for Employment on April 29, 2022, by Plaintiff Kari Riley

The court finds that plaintiff Riley has met her burden of showing that there is no defense to the first count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because plaintiff Riley has proved each element of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 entitling her to judgment on this count. (Lab. Code, § 203, subd. (a), [“If an employer willfully fails to pay . . . any wages of an employee who is discharged or who quits, the wages of the employee shall continue as a penalty from the due date thereof at the same rate until paid or until an action therefor is commenced; but the wages shall not continue for more than 30 days”].)

First, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that she was hired by Defendant through her talent agency, Elite Model Management LLC (“Elite”) for a photography shoot conducted in Los Angeles for the production of photographs for the use in the marketing of Defendant’s products and/or services on April 29, 2022 (“April 29, 2022 Photoshoot”) and thus she was entitled to receive payment of wages earned and unpaid at the time of termination by the next regular payday as a print shoot employee. (Undisputed Material Fact (“UMF”) nos. 3-8.) (Lab. Code, § 201.6, subds. (a)(1), (b).) Second, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence that the April 29, 2022 Photoshoot was completed on April 29, 2022. (UMF no. 9.) Third, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that Defendant’s “next regular payday” as defined in Labor Code section 204 following April 29, 2022, was May 6, 2022. (UMF no.11.) (Lab. Code, § 204.) Fourth, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that Defendant did not make payments to either plaintiff Riley or her talent agency for plaintiff Riley’s services for the April 29, 2022 Photoshoot until June 17, 2022. (UMF no. 12.) Thus, plaintiff Riley has met her burden to show that there is no defense to the first count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203.

The court finds that Defendant has met its burden to show that a triable issue of material fact exists as to whether Defendant willfully failed to pay plaintiff Riley because Defendant has shown it believed plaintiff Riley was not its employee but was an independent contractor. (Declaration of Chung Mee Yoon ("Yoon Decl."), ¶ 9, 12, 13, 15; Exhibit ("Exh.") A.) (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, § 13520 ["A willful failure to pay wages within the meaning of Labor Code Section 203 occurs when an employer intentionally fails to pay wages to an employee when those wages are due. However, a good faith dispute that any wages are due will preclude imposition of waiting time penalties under Section 203"]; Hill v. Walmart Inc. (9th Cir. 2022) 32 F.4th 811, 816 [applying California Labor Law and explaining "[i]t is undisputed that if Hill were an independent contractor, then she would not be an 'employee' entitled to an immediate payment of wages upon discharge pursuant to Labor Code § 201(a) or to recover penalties from Walmart pursuant to § 203"].) "A 'good faith dispute' that any wages are due occurs when an employer presents a defense, based in law or fact which, if successful, would preclude any recovery on the part of the employee. The fact that a defense is ultimately unsuccessful will not preclude a finding that a good faith dispute did exist. Defenses presented which, under all the circumstances, are unsupported by any evidence, are unreasonable, or are presented in bad faith, will preclude a finding of a 'good faith dispute.'" (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, § 13520, subd. (a).)

"[A] person providing labor or services for remuneration shall be considered an employee rather than an independent contractor unless the hiring entity demonstrates that all of the following conditions are satisfied: (A) The person is free from the control and direction of the hiring entity in connection with the performance of the work, both under the contract for the performance of the work and in fact. (B)

The person performs work that is outside the usual course of the hiring entity's business. (C) The person is customarily engaged in an independently established trade, occupation, or business of the same nature as that involved in the work performed." (Lab. Code, § 2775, subd. (b)(1).)

Defendant has presented the declaration of Chung Mee Yoon, who is the Vice President of Defendant, and Yoon states that, all negotiations and agreements are made with the modeling agencies, any changes or modifications to the agreements can only be made with the modeling agencies, not with the model, all billing and payment issues are handled between Defendant and the modeling agencies, and Defendant is obligated to make payments for photoshoots to the modeling agency who then pays its models for the photoshoot. (Yoon Decl., ¶¶ 13, 14.) After the agreement with the modeling agency is completed and the model is booked, Defendant produces a call sheet that provides details of the photoshoot to all vendors, including the date, time, location, and identity of the participants in the photoshoot which Defendant assumes each vendor forwards to the vendor's employee participating in the photoshoot. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 10.) Thus, Defendant has shown that the agreements about each photoshoot are not between plaintiff Riley and Defendant, but rather between Defendant and Elite, and therefore, Defendant does not directly have the ability or right to control plaintiff Riley. (Lab. Code, § 2775, subd. (b)(1)(A).)

Furthermore, Defendant has shown that it is the photographers who instruct the models on what looks they are attempting to shoot and it is the hair and makeup stylists that create the appropriate looks for the models.[1] (Yoon Decl., ¶ 8.) Yoon states that the hair and makeup artist may have instructions for models to assist in their tasks such as no makeup, no products in hair, or no nail treatments, all of which is within the purview of the hair and makeup stylists. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 11.) Defendant's photoshoot coordinator is present at the photoshoots to ensure all of the vendors are present, to supply the appropriate clothing, to ensure that each participant has everything they need, and to ensure that the photoshoot is in line with the theme of the mood board created by Defendant. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 8.) Thus, Defendant has shown that plaintiff Riley was free from the control and direction of Defendant in connection with the performance of the work in fact. (Lab. Code, § 2775, subd. (b)(1)(A).)

Defendant has shown that its work for over 30 years is women's garment manufacturing and wholesaling.

(Yoon Decl., ¶ 4.) Defendant's goods are shipped and sold to retailers located throughout the United States, including brick and mortar stores and online retailers. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 5.) Some of Defendant's garments are sold through

United States retailers in the international market as well. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 5.) Thus, Defendant has shown that plaintiff Riley's modeling is outside the usual course of Defendant's business of women's garment manufacturing and wholesaling.

(Lab. Code, § 2775, subd. (b)(1)(B).)

Defendant contracts and hires outside vendors including, photographers, hair and makeup artists, and models, to assist in photographing Defendant's garments to create "look books" to showcase garments for each season. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 6.) Defendant has shown that plaintiff Riley is engaged in the independent established occupation of modeling because plaintiff Riley is a model who provides her modeling services to other companies and she uses modeling agencies to find work. (Hwang Decl., Exh. D – plaintiff Riley's responses to Defendant's SROGs, no. 46; Hwang Decl., Exh. A - Riley Depo. 14:21-15:12, 23:4-24:4, 25:19-26:11.) Thus, Defendant has shown that plaintiff Riley is engaged in the independently established occupation of modeling, which was the same work she performed for Defendant.

(Lab. Code, § 2775, subd. (b)(1)(C).)

Defendant has also shown that Defendant did not believe plaintiff

Riley was an employee because plaintiff Riley never signed an employment contract, never provided Defendant with an employment application, a completed

W-4 or USCIS I-9, or any emergency contact information or other personal contact information, never negotiated with Defendant prior to a modeling shoot, was never onboarded with Defendant, never met with Defendant's Human Resources, was not provided with employee handbooks, and never reviewed any of Defendant's employee policies and procedures. (Yoon

Decl., ¶¶ 33, 35; Declaration of Henry Hwang ("Hwang Decl."), Exh. A – Riley

Depo. 42:13-45:6.)

The court finds that Defendant has shown that a triable issue of material facts exists as to whether there are reasonable grounds for Defendant to believe that plaintiff Riley was an independent contractor, which is sufficient for a good-faith dispute.

In addition, Defendant has shown that it did not willfully fail to pay plaintiff Riley because Defendant was waiting for Elite to send the correct invoice prior to remitting payment. Yoon states that, on April 21, 2022, Defendant entered into negotiations with Elite, they entered into an agreement for Elite to provide plaintiff Riley as a model for Defendant, and Defendant received an invoice from Elite for the April 29, 2022 Photoshoot on May 5, 2022, but because it was addressed to a different entity, Elite provided Defendant with a revised invoice on June 16, 2022, though the invoice date was not revised. (Yoon Decl., ¶¶ 15-16; Exh. A-C.) Yoon states that, on June 16, 2022, Defendant issued and sent a check to Elite in the amount of $3,000.00 as payment for the invoice. (Yoon Decl., ¶ 17, Exh. D.)

The court denies summary adjudication as to the first count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for employment on April 29, 2022, by plaintiff Riley.

2. Second

Count of Waiting Time Penalties Under Labor Code Section 203 for Employment on September 30, 2022 and October 5, 2022, by Plaintiff Kari Riley

The court finds that plaintiff Riley has met her burden of showing that there is no defense to the second count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because plaintiff Riley has proved each element of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 entitling her to judgment on this count.

First, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that she was hired by Defendant through her talent agency, Elite, for a photography shoot conducted in Los Angeles for the production of photographs for the use in the marketing of Defendant's products and/or services on September 30, 2022 and

October 5, 2022, ("September 30, 2022 and October 5, 2022 Photoshoot") and thus she was entitled to receive payment of wages earned and unpaid at the time of termination by the next regular payday as a print shoot employee. (UMF nos. 15-20.) (Lab. Code, § 201.6, subd. (b).) Second, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence that the September 30, 2022 and October 5, 2022 Photoshoot was completed on October 5, 2022. (UMF no. 21.) Third, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that Defendant's "next regular payday" as defined in Labor Code section 204 following October 5, 2022, was October 21, 2022. (UMF no. 23.) (Lab. Code, § 204.) Fourth, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that Defendant did not make payments to either plaintiff Riley or her talent agency for plaintiff Riley's services for the September 30, 2022 and October 5, 2022 Photoshoot until October 26, 2022. (UMF no. 24.) Thus, plaintiff Riley has met her burden to show that there is no defense to the second count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203.

As discussed above, Defendant has met its burden to show that a triable issue of material fact exists as to whether Defendant willfully failed to timely pay plaintiff Riley because Defendant has shown there is a good-faith dispute as to whether plaintiff Riley was not its employee but was an independent contractor since Defendant negotiated directly with Elite,

Defendant is in the women's garment manufacturing and wholesaling business and not the modeling business, plaintiff Riley models for different companies through modeling agencies, and plaintiff Riley did not provide the documents and did not undergo the necessary procedures to be employed with Defendant. (Yoon Decl., ¶¶ 4, 5, 8-10, 12-15, 33, 35; Hwang Decl., Exh. A – Riley Depo. 14:21-15:12, 23:4-24:4, 25:19-26:11, 42:13-45:6.)

Defendant also attempts to show that it did not fail to timely pay plaintiff Riley because Defendant's next regular pay day was October 26, 2022, the day Defendant paid Elite. However, in its responses to plaintiff Riley's Special Interrogatories, Defendant stated that its next regular paydays between October 5, 2022 and November 5, 2022 were "October 7, 14, 21, 28, November 4." (Declaration of Timothy A. Hall ("Hall Decl."), Exh. S – Defendant's responses to Riley's SROGs, no. 14.) In addition, Labor Code section 204 states that the employer designates the regular paydays in advance within the parameters provided by the section, "Labor performed between the 1st and 15th days, inclusive, of any calendar month shall be paid for between the 16th and the 26th day of the month during which the labor was performed, and labor performed between the 16th and the last day, inclusive, of any calendar month, shall be paid for between the 1st and 10th day of the following month." (Lab. Code, § 204, subd. (a).) Thus, the paydays that Defendant designated as regular paydays were October 7, 14, 21, 28, and November 4, and because the September 30, 2022 and October 5, 2022 Photoshoot ended on October 5, 2022, the next regular payday as designated by Defendant and conforming to Labor Code section 204 was October 21, 2022. Thus,

Defendant's payment on October 26, 2022, is not sufficient to raise a triable issue of material fact.

The court denies summary adjudication as to the second count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for employment on September 30, 2022 and October 5, 2022, by plaintiff Riley.

3. Fourth

Count of Waiting Time Penalties Under Labor Code Section 203 for Employment on December 8, 2022, by Plaintiff Kari Riley

The court finds that plaintiff Riley has not met her burden of showing that there is no defense to the fourth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because Plaintiff has not proved that she was not paid on Defendant's next regular payday as Defendant's next regular payday as defined in Labor Code section 204 following December 8, 2022, was December 23, 2022. (UMF no. 35.) (Lab. Code, § 204.) Plaintiff Riley has presented evidence that shows Defendant made a payment for the December 8, 2022 Photoshoot on December

22, 2022. (UMF no. 36.)

The court denies summary adjudication as to the fourth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for employment on December 8, 2022, by plaintiff Riley.

4. Fifth

Count of Waiting Time Penalties Under Labor Code Section 203 for Employment on March 14, 2023, by Plaintiff Kari Riley

The court finds that plaintiff Riley has met her burden of showing that there is no defense to the fifth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because plaintiff Riley has proved each element of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 entitling her to judgment on this count.

First, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that she was hired by Defendant through her talent agency, Elite, for a photography shoot conducted in Los Angeles for the production of photographs for the use in the marketing of Defendant's products and/or services on March 14, 2023 ("March 14, 2023 Photoshoot") and thus she was entitled to receive payment of wages earned and unpaid at the time of termination by the next regular payday as a print shoot employee. (UMF nos. 39-45.) (Lab. Code, § 201.6, subd. (b).) Second, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence that the March 14, 2023 Photoshoot was completed on March 14, 2023. (UMF no. 45.) Third, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that Defendant's "next regular payday" as defined in Labor Code section 204 following March 14, 2023, could have been either March 17, 2023, or

March 24, 2023. (UMF no. 47.) (Lab. Code, § 204.) Fourth, plaintiff Riley has presented evidence to prove that Defendant did not make payments to either plaintiff Riley or her talent agency for plaintiff Riley's services for the March 14, 2023 Photoshoot until April 7, 2023. (UMF no. 48.) Thus, plaintiff Riley has met her burden to show that there is no defense to the fifth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203.

As discussed above, Defendant has met its burden to show that a

independent contractor since Defendant negotiated directly with Elite,

through modeling agencies, and plaintiff Riley did not provide the documents and

did not undergo the necessary procedures to be employed with Defendant. (Yoon Decl., ¶¶ 4, 5, 8-10, 12-15, 33, 35;

Hwang Decl., Exh. A – Riley Depo. 14:21-15:12, 23:4-24:4, 25:19-26:11, 42:13-45:6.)

The court denies summary adjudication as to the fifth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for employment on March 14, 2023, by plaintiff Riley.

5. Sixth Count of Waiting Time Penalties Under

Labor Code Section 203 for Employment on April 18, 2023, by Plaintiff Lara

Kusez

The court finds that plaintiff Kusez has not met her burden of showing that there is no defense to the sixth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because Plaintiff has not shown that she was not paid on Defendant's next regular payday as Defendant's next regular payday as defined in Labor Code section 204 following April 18, 2023, was May 5, 2023. (UMF no. 61.) (Lab. Code, § 204.) Plaintiff Riley has presented evidence that shows Defendant made a payment for the April 18, 2023 Photoshoot on May 5, 2023.

The court denies summary adjudication as to the sixth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 for employment on April 18, 2023, by plaintiff Kusez.

6. Conclusion

For the reasons set forth above, the court finds that (1) plaintiff

Riley has met her burden to show that there is no defense to the first, second, and fifth counts of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because plaintiff Riley proved each element of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203, and (2) defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. has met its burden to show that a triable issue of material fact exists as to its willfulness to not timely pay plaintiff Riley because there is a good-faith dispute that defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. considered plaintiff Riley to be an independent contractor.

The court also finds that plaintiff Riley did not meet her burden to show there is no defense to the fourth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because plaintiff Riley failed to show that defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. did not timely pay for her services and that plaintiff Kusez did not meet her burden to show there is no defense to the sixth count of waiting time penalties under Labor Code section 203 because plaintiff Kusez failed to show that defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. did not timely pay for her services.

Thus, the court finds that all the papers submitted show that there is a triable issue as to the material fact of whether defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc.'s actions were willful and whether defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. timely paid for plaintiffs Kari Riley and Lara Kusez's services. The court therefore finds that plaintiffs Kari Riley and Lara Kusez are not entitled to judgment as a matter of law. (Code Civ. Proc., § 437c, subd. (c).)

The court therefore denies plaintiffs Kari Riley and Lara Kusez's motion for summary judgment.

ORDER

The court denies plaintiffs Kari Riley and Lara Kusez's motion for summary judgment on the Complaint.

The court orders defendant Steps Apparel Group, Inc. to give notice of this ruling.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Plaintiff Riley asserts that it was Defendant's representatives who instructed her on what to wear, what to do, where to stand, and where to look, and these representatives exercised complete control over the conduct of the photoshoot and had the right to control and direct every aspect of the performances of all other photoshoot participants as well as herself. (Declaration of Kari Riley, ¶ 9.) Although this weighs against a determination that plaintiff Riley was an independent contractor, Defendant's conflicting testimony is sufficient to show that a triable issue of material fact exists as to whether Defendant controlled plaintiff Riley's modeling.
